Savings Halt In Alberta Till New Cabinet In Power

Premier Reid Announces Suspension of Payment By Government on Certificates Till Policies Declared By Incoming Social Credit Cabinet

Many Withdrawals, But Position Sound

Canadian Press

Edmonton, Aug. 27.—Temporary suspension of payments by the Alberta Government on savings certificates until such time as the "new Social Credit government can meet the situation which involves questions of policy that must be determined by the new ministry," was announced by Premier Reid to-day following a lengthy meeting with members of his cabinet.

NEW ARRANGEMENTS

Mr. Reid, through the announcement, was notifying the public that the presentation of demands for payments should be withheld until the new government has had time to make the arrangements necessary to deal with the situation. William Aberhart, Social Credit leader, was notified in Calgary of the government's action in suspending payments until the new government takes office.

Mr. Aberhart over the long distance telephone assured the people of Alberta, in a statement to the press following release of the government announcement, that there was no need for alarm in this action.

MANY DEMANDS

The government statement, which gave no figures as to total withdrawls from savings certificates accounts, read:

"Requests for payment of savings certificates have reached such proportions that they can only be met by measures involving questions of policy that must be determined by the new government.

BIG BILL FOR INCENDIARISM

Damage Through Firebugs Greater Than Through Any Single Cause

In British Columbia last year 2,359 fires caused a total damage of $1,988,501, according to a report of Fire Marshal J. A. Thomas, issued to-day. Four lives were lost, two children and two adults being fire victims during the year.

The total fire loss was $136,248 greater than the previous year.

Fifty-three incendiary fires did damage of $287,643, the report states. Fifty suspicious fires were investigated and six informations were laid under the Fire Marshal Act.

Six persons were charged with arson and five were convicted. The damage through fires from incendiary causes was greater than that through any other known cause.

The origin of 219 fires, responsible for $495,197 damage, is listed as unknown.

Defective chimneys and fireplaces, gasoline carelessness, defective furnace or furnace pipes, clothes too near stovepipe, and backfiring engines were other fire causes in the high totals.

Children with matches started twenty-eight fires.

The report shows that $38,999 worth of automobiles went up in smoke, with seven out of the 167 through incendiarism.

STOCKS SLUMP AT NEW YORK

Associated Press

New York, Aug. 27. — The stock market experienced the worst setback since October 15 last, as measured by price averages.

Most losses in individual shares ranged from $1 to $3, but it was a broad downward movement, embracing most of the list, and selling was so active the ticker was a few minutes behind transactions several times.

There were 648 declines, compared with only seventy-seven advances, and 147 issues unchanged. The Associated Press average of 60 shares dropped 1.3 to 47.1. Sales were well over 2,000,000 shares.

The nose-dive was attributed in most quarters to technical conditions and to scalping by bear elements, on the theory that the good news concerning congressional adjournment was out.

British Premier On Vacation

The Government of Great Britain has as its chief task at the moment the planning of the course it will follow at the League of Nations Council session in Geneva September 4, when the Italo-Ethiopian dispute will be up for consideration. Despite the gravity of the European situation the above picture shows Premier Baldwin is still able to relax and take a vacation. It shows Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin as they arrived at the Victoria Station in London recently on their way to France to spend a brief holiday at Aix-les-Bains, famous Spa.

WM. MAHAN CLUES FAIL

Man Arrested at Helena, Mont., Because He Resembles Fugitive

Associated Press

Helena, Mont., Aug. 27.—Detective James E. Mooney of Butte to-day failed to identify as William Mahan, Weyerhaeuser kidnap suspect, a man arrested here early to-day who bore much resmblance to the fugitive.

Mooney, whose attempt to question Mahan in Butte several days after the kidnapping at Tacoma revealed a hoard of ransom bills in the man's car, hurried here from Butte to-day after Helena officers had picked up a man whose description tallied in many respects with that of the long sought man.

EN ROUTE TO SHOW

The man had given his name to Police Officer Gier Christiansen as Les McGowan and claimed to be a carnival worker en route to join a show.

McGowan and a companion, Millard C. Ackles, of Seattle were being detained until their fingerprints and descriptions could be checked by U.S. Department of Justice agents, Helena authorities said.

ACID BURNS ON FINGERS

McGowan said acid burns that obliterated his fingerprints on one hand were caused some months ago when

British Now Suggesting Declaration To World If Ethiopia Attacked

France Hears Proposal That "Moral Indictment" Be Made By League of Nations If Italy Invades African Nation; Thus Sanctions Under Covenant Would Be Avoided

Naval Moves Seen In Mediterranean

Associated Press

Paris, Aug. 27.—Authoritative sources said this evening that a British plan for the moral indictment of Italy before the League, in case of aggression in Ethiopia, had been presented to Premier Laval.

The plan was described as a substitute for sanctions—international penalties to be applied against treaty-breakers.

French officials said that Ambassador Clerk of Great Britain, in an interview with M. Laval, said Britain would refuse to regard armed Italian intervention in Ethiopia as "a colonial campaign" or as anything else except war.

BEFORE LEAGUE

Ambassador Cerutti of Italy previously had informed the French Premier that Italy would appear at Geneva September 4 to plead her cast against Ethiopia before the League of Nations Council.

It was understood the British ambassador referred to the moral censure against Germany's rearmament which was delivered last spring at Geneva by Italy, France and Great Britain as a model for use against Premier Mussolini.

Such an action would morally indict a treaty-breaker in the eyes of the world without risking sanctions.

PEACEFUL PENETRATION

Ambassador Clerk indicated Great Britain still hopes the Italians will accept a plan for the peaceful penetration of Ethiopia which Mussolini spurned at the tripower conference here ten days ago.

It was said Great Britain was even willing to bring pressure on Emperor Haile Selassie to appeal to the League for help in running his country, help which the League could empower Italy to bring.

SEARCH LEADS TO SALT SPRING

Police Take to Gulf Island in Hunt For Fugitive George B. Scott

The police search for George Bernard Scott, prisoner who escaped yesterday morning from the second floor of the Jubilee Hospital where he had been receiving medical attention pending his trial following a jewel robbery, spread to the Gulf Islands to-day as officers pursued a clue indicating the fugitive had headed for Salt Spring Island.

Scott was reported seen twice here yesterday after his escape in the early hours of the morning.

A civil servant reported to police a man answering Scott's description had been seen in the Parliament Buildings about 5.15 o'clock yesterday afternoon, while after 8 o'clock yesterday evening he was reported seen in Saanich.

Chief Allan Rankin was summoned by a Saanich resident who identified Scott from the picture and description he saw in The Times yesterday evening. With Detectives William Stark and Ben. Acreman, Chief Rankin went to a shack on Seymour Avenue in the Parkdale district but could find no trace of him.

WEARING RAINCOAT

Police, however, were informed Scott was believed to be wearing a black rainproof overcoat over the grey suit which he is wearing following its theft from the hospital.

Scott is wanted in connection with the robbery of $6,000 worth of jewels in a safe from the home of D. O Cameron, 352 Gorge Road, on July 13.

Police maintained a constant vigil on all transportation services in the belief that he might head for the mainland.

SWEDEN IS TO ADD DEFENCES

Associated Press

Stockholm, Aug. 27.—The revamping the Swedish defence system, including the unification of command, an increased air force and army and modernization of the navy with greater attention to light ships was recommended to-day in the report of the commission of thirteen, completing a five-year study.

A seven-year programme entailing the expenditure of 70,000,000 kroner (about $18,000,000) was recommended for building up the air force from 100 first line aircraft to 257.

A ten-year programme of navy modernization was suggested, at a cost of 50,000,000 kroner.

SOVIET NOTE TO U.S. NEW TEST FOR RELATIONS

Moscow Government Declines to Take Action on Washington's Protest Against Interference in U.S. Affairs

By JOHN LLOYD
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Moscow, Aug. 27.—The Soviet Government to-day replied with a rejection to the United States note protesting against activities of the Seventh Congress of the Third Communist Internationale.

Ambassador William C. Bullitt of the United States received a note from Under-Commissar N. N. Krestinsky which read:

"Your note of August 25 contains no facts which could be regarded as a violation on the part of the Soviet government of its obligations.

"On the other hand, it is undoubtedly nothing new for the government of the United States that the government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics cannot assume and has never assumed any obligations as regards the Communist Internationale."

M. Krestinsky summed up by saying:

"I cannot accept your protest and I am compelled to reject it."

BANDITS FIRE AS CLERKS RESIST

Two Men and Woman Escape After Robbing Night Liquor Store in Vancouver of $270 in Cash

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Aug. 27.—Death came close to Clerk John McPhail and Cashier James Mulgrew of the all-night government liquor store on Howe Street here early to-day when a bandit fired three shots from his revolver during a daring hold-up which netted two gunmen and their woman companion $270 in cash and a $20 cheque.

The gunmen first kidnapped Ernest E. Wallas, taxi driver, and used his cab in their escape. The car was later found abandoned on Melville Street.

McPhail had just opened a gate barring entrance to the space behind the store counter with the intention of shutting the street door when a small, but determined-looking young woman attempted to push past him. He thrust her back when a man suddenly appeared and covered him with a revolver, saying, "This is a holdup. Put up your hands."

Plane Trip On Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Paterson of Gordon Head Celebrate Fifty Years of Married Life.

Honeymoons by air are a frequent occurence these days, but a golden wedding "honeymoon" in a plane is a rarity. They left on the 10.30 o'clock plane for Vancouver, and expect to return by the same route.

Mr. and Mrs. Paterson were married on August 26, 1885, at Pollockshields, Glasgow, Scotland, Mrs. Paterson's maiden name being Christina Turnbull Noble. The officiating clergyman on that occasion was Rev. Dr. John G. Paton, of New Hebrides. K. P. Murray of Kentucky Given Custody of Immigration Officials When M. McCardell Tells London, Ont., Court He Had No Share in Labatt Abduction

Canadian Press

London, Ont., Aug. 27.—Kingdon P. Murray of Covington, Ky., held for more than seven months in connection with the kidnapping of John S. Labatt, was given into custody of immigration authorities for deportation today when the Crown offered no evidence against him before County Judge McFayden.

Murray, since his arrest last January, has been in custody seven months and thirteen days.

Before Judge McFayden he reversed his previous election of trial by judge and jury and asked immediate trial by the judge on the charges of armed robbery and kidnapping.

He pleaded not guilty. Crown Attorney Norman Newton offered no evidence and suggested to the court Murray be turned over to immigration authorities on the way from Windsor.

BROUGHT FROM KENTUCKY

When Murray was brought across the border from Kentucky last winter there was a formal refusal of admission by Canadian immigration authorities. Law authorities gave a receipt for their prisoner to comply with regulations. It is expected there will be little delay in Murray's return to the United States.

BERLIN WOMAN IS BEHEADED

Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 27.—Charlotte Juenemann was beheaded at dawn to-day in punishment for the crime of allowing her three children to starve to death.

Willy Gehrke, twenty-three, was put to death by the knife for robbery and murder.

Frau Juenemann, young, slim and blond, was convicted last March after testimony had been given that she had squandered in cafes and dance halls the money she had received for the relief of her three boys, four years, eighteen months and four month old.

"I had not time to give the children food and water," the police quoted her.

At the time of her trial she was reported to be an expectant mother, and it was thought for a time Reichsfuehrer Hitler would intercede for her.

Lawrence Book Priced At $500,000

When "The Mint" By "Aircraftsman Ross" Is Published Figure Will Be Sky High So No Copies Will Be Sold

By JOHN SELBY
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Aug. 27.—The highest price ever quoted on a book at publication will astound those who inquire next winter about "The Mint," by Aircraftsman Ross.

The price is $500,000 the copy.

Aircraftsman Ross was T. E. Shaw and T. E. Lawrence and "Lawrence of Arabia." He adopted the name Ross for a time in an effort to avoid publicity when he was with the air force.

One of the greatest pothers ever kicked up about a book attended the almost surreptitious publication of his "Seven Pillars of Wisdom" in 1926.

A few more than a hundred copies of "Seven Pillars" were printed amid a pea-soup fog of secrecy. The book is being published in a popular edition next month in the United States, incidentally, since Lawrence's death released A. W. Lawrence, brother and literary executor of the author, from restrictions imposed by the scholar and strategist.

BULKY BOOK

But Lawrence also left a manuscript, entitled cryptically "The Mint." This is nearly 70,000 words long and contains Lawrence's experiences after the end of "Seven Pillars," particularly his experiences in the Royal Flying Corps.

Its criticism of living men, of British institutions and of the profession of soldier and several other things are described by one who has seen the manuscript as so stringent that publication may not be had in England for many years, if ever. Lawrence wished it to be protected, but kept out of circulation.

So the book is to be set up and printed by Doubleday, Doran and Co. Two copies will be sent to Washington to secure copyright; ten copies will be kept for sale. But it is not believed there will be any takers at $500,0000.

Photographer Is Acquitted

A. Carty Freed at London, Ont., Though Prisoner's Arm Broken

Canadian Press

London, Ont., Aug. 27. — Arthur Carty, free lance London newspaperman and photographer, was acquitted to-day by Deputy Magistrate Donald Menzies on a charge of common assault on Michael McCardell, confessed kidnapper of John S. Labatt.

In city police court, crowded with reporters, lawyers and police officers, McCardell went to the witness box and told how his arm was broken when he arrived by train from Crown Point, Indiana, August 1.

He said there was something of a tussle in which he attempted to shield his face from camermen and he "felt as though I had been struck a blow from behind."

REGARDED AS JOKE

His battered hat was produced in court and McCardell, his arm still in a sling, seemed to accept the matter as a joke.

Sergt. Ted Weeks of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Inspector Hamor Gardner of the Ontario Provincial force and Crown Attorney Norman Newton all described the arrival of McCardell at the station, and told of Carty attempting to pull McCardell's hat from his face.

Carty, conducting his own defence, said he had apologized to McCardell for the injury, and expressed regret again in court for what he termed "this unfortunate incident."

drawn by informed circles was that both teams of negotiators were reviewing possible concessions of either side.

The concensus was that while negotiations had reached the definite stage of proposition and counter-proposition after months of investigation, there was no immediate probability of agreement.

PROGRESS EXPECTED

Ottawa, Aug. 27 (Canadian Press).—Reports from Washington that further steps were being taken in the negotiations for a reciprocal trade agreement between Canada and the United States were in line with recent rumors here that definite progress could be expected before the end of September.

For two years and particularly during the last eighteen months, departments in Ottawa have been collecting data and it is understood the cabinet has given much consideration to the extent to which Canada could go in offering tariff reductions to the United States. Those in close touch say Canada is prepared to make substantial concessions.

LUMBER AND CATTLE

Canada is hoping the United States will lower the tariff rates against Canadian cattle, lumber and fish. These are three most important commodities with dairy products coming fourth.

In their study of the trade exchange officials of the United States held hearings in Washington last March. An announcement on the progress of the hearings listed as leading United States exports to Canada: Machinery, coal, crude petroleum and gasoline, chemicals and allied products, iron and steel products, automobile parts, fresh fruits, raw cotton, books and printed matter.

Chief imports from Canada were given as: Newsprint wood and wood pulp, fish, precious metals, chemicals and allied products, nickel, copper, furs and asbestos.

SEARCH FOR PLANE FUTILE

Alaska Fliers Find No Trace of Pilot A. F. Hines and Three Others

Associated Press

Fairbanks, Alaska, Aug. 7.—Thirty-four thousand miles of mercy" flying and untold weary miles of searching on foot lay behind the men patrolling sky and land to-day in the hunt for Pilot Arthur F. Hines's lost airplane and his three passengers.

As the ninth day came, with no traces of the bright orange wings of Hines's ship, weary pilots in an ever-widening circle from Tanana Crossing still swept over mountains and shattered the quiet of wilderness valleys with their roaring motors.

Hines, Mr. and Mrs. John Lonz of Fairbanks, and Alton Nordale, clerk of the U.S. District Court at Fairbanks, vanished after taking off from Dawson, Y.T., August 19, on their way home from a celebration marking the discovery of gold in the Yukon.

IN WILD COUNTRY

Somewhere in the rugged country between the two cities the missing ship will be found, the fliers believe, and so the search has been carried on, although the pilots have found it increasingly difficult to keep their tired eyes on the lookout for a glimpse of an orange wing or any clue of the lost plane.

When the pilots, most of whom have been flying almost ceaselessly for six days, feel themselves dozing at teh controls, they speed to Tanana Crossing, where they snatch a bite to eat, sleep a short time and then start off again.

The citizens of Dawson have been providing free food, shelter and gasoline for the pilots.

"The government has already met abnormal demands for payment of these certificates, and has on hand additional securities which could ordinarily be disposed of to take care of the present demands, but which are not now seadily marketable.

"The government is, therefore, notifying the public that the presentation of demands for payment should be withheld until the new government has had time to make the arrangements necessary to deal with the situation.

POSITION SOUND

"At the same time, the government wishes to assure the holders of these certificates and the holders of debentures that the position is sound, and that there should be no undue apprehension as to the worth of Alberta securities. Interest payments due on debentures and certificates will be met as usual."

Mr. Aberhart in a brief statement reiterated the government's warning that there was no need for "undue apprehension."

NO DANGER

The text of his statement follows:

"There is no danger whatever that the savings certificates will not be fully honored. The people need not be unduly apprehensive, as the province is wealthy enough to meet all demands of all kinds. Holdings are as secure in the provincial savings department as any other place.

"A little patience on the part of the people is all that is necessary, and I will demonstrate this to them. There is no intention on our part to do anything rash or foolish, nor will there be any confiscation or repudiation of any kind."

Canadian Press

Calgary, Aug. 27. — William Aberhart has hopes he will be able to induce eastern bankers to co-operate with him in establishing his Social Credit financial system endorsed overwhelmingly at the polls in Alberta last week.

The grey-haired educationist-economist-evangelist who will be premier of Alberta in a few days said he hoped to persuade at least one of the chartered banks, if not all of them, to lend branch offices in Alberta as clearing houses for his credit dividends, the foundation of his system. If unsuccessful, he will establish his own clearing houses but he believes it would be good business for the banks to co-operate with him.

Under the Aberhart system, every bona fide citizen of Alberta will receive a monthly dividend or credit payment of $25 which will be withdrawn from circulation piecemeal by a turnover tax or as he terms it, an unearned increment levy. At the first of every month, every man and woman will take a passbook to the government clearing house to be credited with $25. He can pay it to his grocer, butcher, landlord or anyone else to whom he owes money. But the credit will be non-negotiable so the grocer will have to deposit it with the clearing house and receive a new credit in return with which he can pay his debts. This is to guarantee the circulation of the credit.

AS CONVENIENCE

Seated in a deep-upholstered chair in his own home here, Mr. Aberhart told an interviewer he believed he could convince the chartered banks it would be good business for them to designate their branch offices as government clearing depots. He referred to salary men who would prefer depositing their weekly pay cheques in the same institution in which their credit dividends were cashed, doing away with two bank accounts.

But, he went on, if the banks failed to co-operate with him, he would establish his own clearing houses. Bank charters are granted by the Dominion Government and he does not believe he could secure a license to open a provincial bank although he could see no legal barrier in establishing clearing houses for non-negotiable credits.

Canadian Press

Calgary, Aug. 27.—Major C. H. Douglas, founder of Social Credit, may come to Alberta early in September to advise the new Aberhart government on establishing its social credit system. He cabled William Aberhart to-day he could leave England in ten days or two weeks, but a reply will not be sent until after to-morrow's caucus of the Aberhart Party.

Douglas was appointed financial adviser to the Reid government, having a two-year contract. He will continue under the Aberhart administration.

DECLARED POSSIBLE

The promise of $25 a month to every bona fide adult citizen of Alberta is "quite practicable," declared Major C. H. Douglas in an interview published this morning in The London News-Chronicle.

He added his opinion that the scheme, projected by William Aberhart and his Social Credit League followers who triumphed in last week's provincial election, would have to be developed in stages.

Major Douglas was quoted as saying that when he met Aberhart while in Alberta some months ago at the invitation of the then United Farmers' Government to study social credit possibilities, he was "much impressed with his ability." He had criticized Aberhart's proposals as a paid official of the Alberta government when asked for an opinion, but the criticism, he said, was on points of detail.

BY STAGES

"It must be remembered," Major Douglas was quoted, "that Aberhart had the election to consider and I have no doubt he now realizes the necessity of proceeding in stages."

The economist added that Albertans must "do without frills for a time at any rate. But there is no reason why everyone should not have £5 per month, which would be a good deal better than the grinding poverty from which many suffer to-day."

Asked if he were afraid of the banks, Major Douglas replied: "Banks are made into bogeys. If there is any difficulty their co-operation may have to be enforced."

Canadian Press

NOT CROSSING BORDER

Calgary, Aug. 27. — A flat denial was issued here to-day by William Aberhart that nine of his field organizers had left for Saskatchewan last night to preach the doctrine of Social Credit.

"There will be no field organizers sent into Saskatchewan until the people of Saskatchewan press for it," Aberhart said. "We do not intend to interfere in the domestic affairs of any province."

A caucus of Aberhart nominees will decide here to-morrow whether the party will enter candidates in the federal election.

Man Held Months In Kidnap Case Deported to U.S.

Murray's release followed a dramatic recital yesterday of the story of the kidnapping by Michael McCardell, self-confessed abductor of the wealthy brewer. McCardell, who was arrested on a hijacking charge after a running fight with policemen in Indiana last month, declared in court yesterday that Murray had "nothing whatever" to do with the kidnapping.

McCardell also absolved David Meisner, now serving a fifteen-year penitentiary term for the kidnapping, saying Meisner, learning of the plot, had refused to take part in it.

McCardell implicated Jack Basil Bannon, who was committed for trial yesterday after McCardell's evidence, and Albert Pegram, sought since the abduction but never captured.

He also declared he understood Louis McCaughey, sales manager for the Labatt brewery, was to share in the ransom money which the abductors placed at $200,000 but in the ransome note set $150,000 as their demand.

Suspension of McCaughey as general sales manager of the Labatt Brewery was revealed here yesterday evening.

ONE RAN OUT

Labatt, taken from his car on a country road between Sarnia and London August 14, 1934, was carried to the Muskoka district and released three days later on the outskirts of Toronto. McCardell maintained Pegram ran out on his accomplices. Officials say no ransom money was ever paid.

Murray, a thin and partly bald man of thirty-five and father of two children, stood nervously twisting his hands as to-day's formalities proceeded. His high-pitched, mild voice could scarcely be heard when he replied to Judge McFayden's questions.

"Well, that's that," he said as he walked out of the court accompanied by his counsel, George Mitchell.

Photographers found him a willing subject and he posed several times in the law library.

PRIZE WISECRACK

The prize wisecrack of Canada's first ransom kidnapping was voted to-day to Murray, the "Piccolo Pete" of Covington, Ky., who was identified by John S. Labatt as one of his abductors.

When he was released for deportation, Murray prepared to see London pending arrival of immigration officers.

"Where are you going?" he was asked after his discharge in court.

"I'm going out," said Piccol Pete, "to see if Labatt's beer is as bad as his eyesight."

FLURRY AT BALTIMORE

Associated Press

Baltimore, Aug. 27.—A flurry of excitement following the sighting in Maryland of a man resembling William Mahan, fugitive Weyerhaeuser kidnap suspect, and subsequent discovery of a "hot" car, was subsiding in doubt to-day.

The automobile, bearing Ohio license plates, was located here yesterday evening. Police became skeptical it was Mahan's when they learned the license had been issued to a salesman and neither plates nor automobile had been stolen.

They watched the automobile throughout the night, but the driver did not reappear at the spot where he had parked it after stopping at a nearby house and borrowing a dollar for a shave.

Mahan is the only person still sought for the $200,000 kidnapping at Tacoma of the nine-year-old heir to the northwest lumber fortune.

Harmon Waley, former convict, is serving a forty-five-year sentence after pleading guilty, and his wife, Margaret, nineteen, was convicted by a Tacoma jury and sentenced to serve twenty-one years, in connection with the abduction.

EXPECT TO TAKE BANDITS SHORTLY

Canadian Press

Lillooet, B.C., Aug. 27.—Inspector Shirras of the British Columbia police, to-day said he was confident the two unapprehended Pioneer Bank bandits were still in the district and would be captured soon.

The whole district is well patrolled and the Indians have been instructed to look out for the pair.

SMALL WHEAT CROP IN WEST

Harvesting Proceeding Satisfactorily in Eastern Canada, Says Ottawa

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Aug. 27. — The Dominion Bureau of Statistics stated today in its sixth telegraphic crop report that the wheat and coarse grain yield in midwest Canada would be low this year, but that eastern grain harvests were proceeding satisfactorily.

The report said much needed-rains had fallen in the Maritimes, breaking a three-weeks drought, and that average yields of grain were being harvested in Quebec.

FAIR IN ONTARIO

Spring grains were generally fair in Ontario and tobacco and corn crops were reported good. Grains, however, were needed for root crops, pastures and preparation of fall wheat fields.

Crops in far eastern Quebec, which had suffered severely from excessive heat and drought, are recovering with rains and cooler weather.

In Ontario "cutting of grain is nearly completed, and with favorable weather threshing is advancing steadily, although somewhat slowly, owing to the heavy straw. Fall wheat yields were disappointing with some sprouting reported.

CARTOON PROTEST HEARD AT MANILA

Associated Press

Manila, Aug. 27. — Two Chinese daily newspapers here to-day reproduced the recent Vanity Fair cartoon lampooning Emperor Hirohito of Japan, with the result that the Japanese consul-general protested to the Chinese consul-general.

United States authorities, it was learned, previously had informed Japanese Consul-General Kenkichi Uchiyama that they were unable to prevent such publication under existing laws providing for freedom of the press.

Uchiyama, who recently arrived here from Seattle, wrote Chinese Consul-General Ti Dunn that reproduction of the cartoon showed "lack of respect toward the emperor."

There the matter rested, with no indications further developments would be forthcoming immediately. The Chinese official made no reply.

STORM DEATH TOLL IS FORTY

OTTAWA IS NOT SELLING RIFLES

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Aug. 27.—The Defence Department's stock of Ross rifles is not for sale. This announcement has been prompted by the numerous requests received since the Italo-Ethiopian dispute assumed menacing proportions for the purchase of these arms.

Whether the origin of the offers lies with "gun-runners" seeking an easy profit by transporting the rifles to Ethiopia or not is not known. However, the government is not in the armament business.

Known Total in Newfoundland Waters Rises As Further Reports of Missing Fishermen Come in

Canadian Press

St. John's, Nfld., Aug.27.—Estimates of the deaths in Newfoundland's week-end hurricane rose this afternoon to forty as reports reached land of more seamen drowned or missing after the terrific gale had whirled over the island.

The Lunenburg, N.S., fishing schooner, Beatrice Beck and the Portuguese fisherman Senora Disandi in port to-day, each lost a man as the gale raged across Newfoundland's coastal waters.

They made harbor soon after the little schooner Annie Anita had drifted ashore with Captain Walsh and his young son dead in her cabin.

BROTHERS DROWNED

Five brothers and another seaman were reported to have been lost with the fishing schooner Walter, and more were feared dead after the blow had struck two other craft and left them derelicts adrift in heavy seas. One of the wrecked vessels, dismasted, was adrift off Powell's Head. The other, waterlogged and almost submerged was rolling in the combers off the northwest Virgins.

MANY CRAFT ASHORE

Aftermath of the storm, ships were strewn for miles along the island's shoreline. Scores of craft, schooners, motorboats and dories, had been cast up, washed out to sea, or sunk at their moorings.

test against interference in American affairs will—in the opinion of well-informed observers—force the United States to review the character of its future relationship with the Soviet Union.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull declined any comment to-day on the Soviet action pending receipt of official dispatches from William C. Bullitt, United States Ambassador at Moscow.

LESS FRIENDLY TONE

While the American note served blunt warning on Moscow of "serious consequences," it is believed by observers here that, for the time being at least, there will be no definite break in friendly relations.

Expectation, however, is that relations between the two nations may be reduced to the bare and necessary formalities, and lack the friendly tone that has characterized Soviet-United States intercourse since President Roosevelt's recognition of that government two years ago.

Moscow, Aug. 27.—Verbal protests by the British, Italian and Latvian governments against statement by speakers in the recent Seventh Congress of the Third Internationale were "rejected immediately" by the Soviet Government.

This announcement was made today.

The United States protest was delivered Sunday. The other three governments made their protests prior to that of the United States.

The British protest was made August 19, when Lord Chilston, the British ambassador, called on Vice-Commissar N. N. Krestinsky.

Lord Chilston attacked remarks made by Georgi Dimitroff, Bulgarian Communist leader, who, in a speech before the Internationale, accused the British National Government of clearing the way for Fascism.

Dimitroff said the Communists favored the return of a labor government in Great Britain with the eventual aim of establishing a Soviet regime there.

The Italian speaker Bastisti told the Internationale that the Communists in Italy were working up opposition to Premier Mussolini's military plans in Africa.

BRITISH DISCUSSION

London, Aug. 27.—It was officially stated to-day the British Ambassador at Moscow, Lord Chilston, "discussed the matter of Communist activities here during conversations with Russian officials on one or two occasions recently."

The Foreign Office appeared inclined to minimize the ambassador's action, and official quarters did not reveal whether there was a reply to these "discussions," or whether the matter was satisfactorily adjusted.

The ambassador's conversations in Moscow were not termed either protests or representations, and further information regarding the details of his action were not divulged.

It was not stated whether the British moves were independent of other nations (the United States, Italy and Lativa) reported in Moscow to have protested.

An Anglo-Russian agreement of 1931 prohibits Communist revolutionary activities here.

BANDITS FIRE AS CLERKS RESIST

McPhail refused to obey the order and the man fired, the bullet missing its human target. The clerk dashed for safety at the rear of the store.

TWO SHOTS FIRED

Under threat of the gunman's revolver, the cashier was compelled to stand by while the woman rifled the cash drawer. The bandit couple then retreated to the front door, the man firing two shots in the direction of Mulgrew, apparently to discourage possible pursuit.

On reaching the street the robbers leaped into an automobile in which a companion had waited for them. When this car was found abandoned a few minutes later, the taxidriver was found inside, his hands bound tightly. He reported he had been forced to drive into a alley and there had been bound and compelled to lie on the floor of the cab.

League Indictment Of Italy Proposed

By G. H. ANDERSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Aug. 27.—The admiralty scanned the horizon with increased vigilance to-day as news reached London that the Italian battle fleet had been ordered for "extensive movements."

The Mediterranean has been transformed into a tense zone, bristling with the presence of two powerful armadas.

Unheralded manoeuvres reported to have been ordered by Mussolini were interpreted here as a counter move to Great Britain's regular cruise programme that within a short time will see her Mediterranean fleet within striking distance of the Suez Canal.

Jealously eyed by Britain as the "life-line" to its African colonies, and by Italy as a vital artery of supply for some 250,000 soldiers in Eritrea and Italian Somaliland, the Suez Canal is felt here to offer far more danger to European peace than the impending Italo-Ethiopian hostilities.

JAPAN AND COLONIES

The whole question received impetus from another quarter to-day, as Japan was reported to have followed Germany's lead in clamoring for a colonial "place in the sun."

The London Daily Herald said the Japanese Government was preparing to open negotiations with Great Britain, the Netherlands and other powers "with the idea of securing immigration rights in the Far East for some of her millions of surplus population."

The paper said access to a number of British possessions would be sought for the Japanese surplus.

These twin developments confronted Sir Samuel Hoare, Foreign Secretary, and Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, Minister for League of Nations Affairs, who returned to Whitehall to-day to prepare the British strategy for the meeting of the Council of the League of Nations at Geneva, September 4. Mussolini is expected to demand then the expulsion of Ethiopia from the League in rebuttal to the British Government's insistence on a showdown.

Addis Ababa, Aug. 27.—Foreigners and natives rushed the National Bank to-day to convert their paper thalers into silver money as authorities posted guards to keep order. The bank later resumed limited foreign exchange operations.

More than 100 Greeks, Italians and Armenians left the country to-day. There were moving farewells at the station as weeping foreigners parted with their wives and children. The train was packed with Hindu money lenders rushing to Djibouti, French Somaliland, carrying as much foreign money as they could scrape up.

RECORDS SHIPPED OUT

The Italian legation, which dispatched two foreign carloads of official records and other property on a special train to Djibouti yesterday, is preparing additional shipments of the legation effects. Ethiopians interpret this as evidence of an eventual complete withdrawal.

Six Italian missionaries were among those who left here to-day.

The French director of the Franco-Ethiopian Railway is leaving for Paris to consult the French government on the question of sending French troops to guard the railroad, of which the French own the majority stock.

DRIVE HERDS

Ethiopians continue to evacuate the capital. Striking scenes were witnessed along the sodden roads, soaked by the summer-long rains, where white-clad barefooted women and children were returning to their natal villages bearing what little property they possess on their backs. The groups trudge through torrential rains in the wake of their herds and household pets.

SEES GREAT WAR DANGERS

Bertrand Russell Says Italian-Ethiopian Fight Might Become General

By BERTRAND RUSSELL
(Earl Russell, famous philosopher, scientist and author)

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press)

Telegraph House, Harting, Petersfield, England, Aug 27.—I think the United States is wise in determining upon neutrality. If I were an American I would support the measures which have been before Congress with a view toward securing the non-participation of America in European quarrels.

I should, in fact, wish to see England adopting a similiar policy. I think it will be possible for America to remain neutral providing no munitions are supplied to either side and other provisions of the recent neutrality resolution are rigidly enforced.

FOR CIVILIZATION

At this stage of the world's history, when war is likely to destroy civilization and all the European powers that engage in it, neutrality appears to be imperative to the interests of civilization.

I have hoped that the campaign in Ethiopia may prove so burdensome and unpopular as to cause the downfall of Mussolini, which would prove the beginning of a better state of affairs in Europe, whereas the probable effect of a war against Fascism would spread Fascism to countries now free from it or alternatively collapse all orderly government.

MOVES SLOWLY

On these grounds I hold that the British government is wise in moving slowly, since to my mind the most important thing is to avoid a general war. On one hand I feel of course that Italy's behavior is totally indefensible—the Italian cause has only demerits, a case does not exist. On the other hand I do not think it will be possible to stop Italy except through threat, perhaps even the actuality of war.

If there were war on this issue it would very likely become a general war. I do not think Ethiopia is sufficiently important to justify the risk of such an appalling catastrophe.

U.S. Legislators Return Home

Turbulent Session Ended at Last Midnight After Filibuter By Huey Long

Associated Press

Washington, Aug. 27.—Turbulent and tense to the very last instant of its strife-torn first session, the seventy-fourth Congress of the United States headed homeward to-day leaving anxious Roosevelt leaders seeking ways to obtain millions in funds cut off by a 5½ hour filibuster by Senator Huey Long, Louisiana Democrat.

Talking on despite taunts, gibes and earnest pleas, Long held the Senate floor until the Senate adjourned at the stroke of last midnight and thus succeeded in blocking the $102,000,000 third deficiency bill, carrying funds to start the New Deal's giant social security programme, utilities regulation, the Guffey coal control bill, the new neutrality plan and other major measures.

COTTON LOANS

Declaring he wanted action on 12 cent cotton and 90 cent wheat loans amendments which were abandoned with the AAA announced a compromise 10 cent loan plus subsidy programme for cotton, Long was the centre of a highly dramatic scene an instant before midnight as gay crowds in galleries held their breath.

However, as the big clock's hand moved to 12, Vice-President Garner's gavel cracked.

"The Senate is adjourned sine die," the Vice-President proclaimed.

The two houses, hours earlier, had passed resoultions for automatic adjournment at midnight.

MANY ARRESTS IN GERMANY

Nazi Leaders Increase Measures Against Adverse Criticism

Berlin, Aug. 27.—The activity with which the Nazi Party is fighting adverse criticism was disclosed to-day in a report of the swiftly mounting number of arrests of "state enemies."

Tearing down placards often means several weeks of imprisonment. Remarks about Reichsfuehrer Hitler bring mysterious "protective custody" by secret police.

An evangelical clergyman named Poetter of Swinemuende was taken into protective custody because he closed his confirmation class to Nazi youths who played hooky from Sunday school. His act was considered a criticism of the youth leader.

Assistant Pastor Marienfeld of Wielitzken was ordered to leave his parish because he allegedly declared "one doesn't obey a bishop who offends against the Bible and the faith."

Wilhelm Nagel of Reinbek was sentenced to six months for failing to salute the Nazi flag.

William Aberhart Is Unique Figure In Canadian Politics

Man Slated to be Social Credit Premier of Alberta Has Taught School Thirty-five Years; Has Broadcast Religious and Political Addresses on Sundays From Calgary

FROM THE WINNIPEG TRIBUNE

William Aberhart, B.A., of Calgary, is hailed as a prophet of religion in Alberta, but he is more sensational as a political prophet. On April 8, in Calgary, he said: "It will be the greatest landslide that has ever happened in an election."

The "B.A." stands for bachelor of arts, obtained from Queen's University. Has also a commercial teacher's certificate from a Brantford institution.

Has been a school teacher and principal so long—35 years—that he treats his audiences like pet pupils and his opponents like the dunces of the class.

Wanted to be a Presbyterian minister when he was young. Instead, got sidetracked into controlling the People's Institute of Calgary, from which he broadcasts religious and political addresses twice on Sundays and teaches 5,000 Sunday school boys and girls by correspondence.

BORN IN ONTARIO

Was born in Huron County, Ontario, in 1878, which makes the Bruce County associations very happy. Is of German descent, but recently denied charges that he was anti-Semitic or had any affiliation with the Ku Klux Klan. In 1921 he prophesied an Anglo-American alliance against the peril of the yellow race. Which indicates some racial virus.

Does not like opposition. Therefore he refuses to answer questions on the political platform. For this reason, also insisted on hand-picking his Alberta Social Credit candidates himself. He denies he is a dictator. Prefers to be referred to as a messiah.

IS PROHIBITIONIST

Was and is an ardent prohibitionist.

Resembles Father Coughlin in his use of the radio to broadcast a mixture of religion and politics. Resembles Huey Long in his idea of making every man a king for $25 a month. Resembles Canadian political predecessors in nothing, except spell-binding.

Is built along the lines of Premier R. B. Bennett, who also comes from Calgary, but is said to resemble Dr Frank Buchman, founder of the Oxford Group Movement, particularly around the eyes.

Major Douglas, originator of the Social Credit idea, once called him a "husky fellow." To have called him a "stout fellow" would have been too personal.

Came to Calgary in 1910, five years after Alberta was made a province, so considers himself a native son. Has two married daughters, but they live in Vancouver. His wife leads the women's activities at the institute.

Began a Bible class of sixty in Calgary, which outgrew five successively larger places of meeting, until 1927, when the $65,000 institute was built for him. The institute is getting a little cramped.

Says he has forged ahead politically because of the Bible in one hand and common sense in the other. Drought, hail, grasshoppers, low commodity prices and unemployment in Alberta have also helped.

TO ABANDON RAILWAY LINE

Great Northern Asks Permission to End Washington-B.C. Link

Associated Press

Washington, Aug. 27.—The Great Northern Railway asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to-day for permission to abandon its line from Oroville, Washington, to the Canadian boundary, a distance of twenty-two miles.

It was announced in the application also that if this request were granted the Vancouver, Victoria and Eastern Railway and Navigation Company, a Canadian corporation owned by the Great Northern, would seek permission from the Canadian Railway Commission to abandon fifty-nine miles from the border to Princeton, British Columbia.

The tracks to be abandoned are part of a line originally constructed between the Great Northern main line at Oroville and Brookmere, British Columbia. The Canadian line is ninety-seven miles long but twenty-four miles from Hedley, B.C., to Princeton has been given permission to suspend operations until next summer because of flood damage. From Princeton to Brookmere the tracks are used by the Canadian Pacific Railway under trackage rights.

The application said anticipated business had not developed and that with prospects of heavy expenditures for maintenance which would not bring in any additional revenue the company felt it should not be required to continue operation.

"FORGOTTEN MAN"

The "most forgotten man" in the United States, William "Babe" Quinn, above, may soon breathe air of a free man after serving from five to fifteen years more than he was supposed to. Quinn, fifty-two, a convict at the Kansas penitentiary, murdered William McBee, another negro, in 1906 after the latter had slashed him in a quarrel over a glass of beer. Although he was sentenced to die within a year, the Kansas capital punishment law was revoked in 1907. Quinn's sentence was not revoked. In 1915 his sentence was commuted and he was later paroled. When he violated his parole, Queen ws returned to prison, where he has been since. His case is being investigated.

Man Eats Meal Of Twenty Pounds

Philadelphia Barber Amazes Watching Newspapermen As He Dines

Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 27. — Tony Laurentis, barber, consumed more than twenty pounds of food and drink for dinner yesterday evening. A restaurant owner furnished the meal.

Tony is the same barber who ate 240 apples in an hour and fifty-six minutes some time ago. Frank Palumbo, his host yesterday evening, invited newspapermen and various doubting Thomases to watch.

The barber cleared his throat with a gallon of wine.

Then, refreshed, he ate four pounds of spaghetti with tomato sauce and cheese. There followed in steady succession twelve spring chickens, two large sirloin stakes, a meat roast and a gallon of beer as a chaser.

Japan Argues Naval Equality

Note Presented to Britain Sets Conditions For Proposed Conference

Associated Press

London, Aug. 27.—A Japanese note delivered to the Foreign Office here insists on advance recognition of naval equity with Great Britain and the United States as a condition to the holding of a preliminary naval conference here in October.

The note, delivered yesterday by Charge d'Affaires Fugii, makes it clear Japan will not participate in the four-power meeting unless Japanese proposals for a common upper limit of global tonnage as a general limitation of fleets as a whole forms the basis of any new naval agreement. Unless this method of limitation is agreed on by the other powers, the note indicates, Japan sees no reason for holding the conference.

In the note, Japan again outlines demands presented to Great Britain and the United States at the three-power naval conversation held here last year. These demands included equality with the other two powers; limitation or regulation of the size of the fleets by a common upper limit of tonnage, commonly called the global tonnage plan; the right of each power under such limitation to build any number of the size and type of ships it desired within the general blanket tonnage limit for the fleet; elimination of teh ratio principle of limitation, and elimination of battleships, large cruisers and aircraft carriers.

Candidate At Saturna Island

Federal Liberal Candidate For Nanaimo Speaks Before Big Crowd

The great problem before the people of Canada was how it was possible to absorb young men and women into the business and commercial life of the Dominion, Alan Chambers, federal Liberal candidate for the Nanaimo riding, said in the course of an address at Saturna Island yesterday.

He was well received by one of the largest audiences that has gathered at a political meeting on the island for some time.

Mr. Chambers dealt at length with the trade policies of the Bennett government and said the only permanent basis of recovery for Canada lay along the lines of recovery of trade.

W. M. Mouat spoke briefly, expressing the need for stable, progressive government and particularly of the necessity of electing young men to parliament at this time.

A. E. Pocock presided.

TOLL OF WHEAT RUST IS GREAT

Shrinkage of Crop on Prairies Estimated at 102,000,000 Bushels, Says Director of Federal Experimental Farms

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Aug. 27.—Farmers of the prairies will lose approximately $100,000,000 on account of wheat rust this year, taking eighty cents a bushel as the average price for wheat, Dr. E. S. Archibald, director of experimental farms, believes.

Dr. Archibald told a local service club he had made two trips to the west this season, and until about three weeks ago looked for a 500,000,000-bushel crop of wheat, oats and barley. Now, however, the situation was changed. Prairie grain fields had been struck by the worst epidemic of black stem rust ever experienced in Canada. Previous epidemics had come in 1904, 1916, 1920, 1923 and 1927.

Rust had caused a loss of 100,000,000 bushels in 1916, said Dr. Archibald. He said that was "the year of the great disaster in western Canada, when wheat was so badly needed by Great Britain and the Allies." It had meant a loss of $150,000,000.

This year the loss would be greater, although the financial loss would be less because of lower prices. United States farmers had suffered as well to the tune of many millions.

GREAT SHRINKAGE

"The condition this year," he said, "is that at the present time, according to estimates made about ten days ago, there will be a total reduction in the west of about 102,000,000 bushels."

Added to the loss in volume would be a reduction in the grades of wheat which would almost equal the monetary loss involved in the decreased yield.

The areas most affected would be the southern half of Manitoba and the southeastern part of Saskatchewan. The line of severe infection extended as far west as Moose Jaw, but Alberta and northwest Saskatchewan were not affected.

Several varieties of high yielding, rust-resistant wheat had now been developed, said Dr. Archibald, and there were about 8,000 or 9,000 bushels of this wheat available for seeding next year. If the quantity could be increased at a normal rate in the next couple of years the most critical aspects of the rust problem would be eliminated.

CALGARY FACES FINANCE CRISIS

Canadian Press

Calgary, Aug. 27.—The city of Calgary will face a financial crisis by the end of this month unless the city's line of credit at the bank is increased for the remaining months of the year, it was learned to-day.

There are sufficient funds on hand with which to pay salaries at the end of August, but it is not believed the September 15 payroll can be met unless some additional assistance is forthcoming.

Other than to say the city's financial position was serious, Mayor Davison declined to comment.

A special meeting of the finance committee of the council will be held this week.

HUGHES WARNS OF WORLD WAR

Associated Press

Sydney, Australia, Aug. 27.—Rt. Hon. William Morris Hughes, vice-president of the Executive Council of the Commonwealth and war-time Prime Minister, declared yesterday:

"There could be no more certain way of unleashing the dogs of war for another terrible world conflict than a single-handed attempt by Great Britain to intervene between the Italians and the Ethiopians."

He said a British attempt to enforce an economic blockade of Italy might endanger the empire "for, even though the British might be able to triumph over Italy, such a conflict would leave Great Britain an easy prey to other nations."

Goat Milks Seven Tons

Firsglen Verona, Little Saanen Doe Has Given 140 Times Her Own Weight in Milk During Five Years

When Mrs. Laura Blakeney made application for the registration of her Saanen doe Firsglen Verona for another year, George Pilmer, provincial goat expert, had a fit of statistics.

He found out that this seven-eighth grade, seven-year-old goat had given seven tons of milk since it began milking; or to be exact 13,957 pounds in five years of lactation.

In other words she had milked about 140 times her own weight in milk. Her best year was in 1932 when she gave 3,342 pounds of milk.

On her best day she milked 14.8 pounds or six quarts, and over the five year period she gave an average of 8¾ pounds or 3½ quarts per day.

Since Mrs. Blakeney only milks her goats during ten months in the year, as she believes in giving them a rest before freshing, on an average year, this little Saanen gave her own weight in milk every ten days.

Firsglen Verona has won many championships at Victoria and Vancouver fairs, and has headed the goat milking contest almost since she was first milked.

PECK BREAKS ON PENSIONS

Says Bennett Nulified Plan For Fair Deal to Ex-service Men

Because of the stand the Bennett Government took on returned soldiers' pensions and because of its actions in nullifying the pensions tribunals set up by the Mackenzie King Government, Col. Cyrus Peck, V.C., finds himself unable to support a Conservative candidate in the present contest he told an audience at Pender Island yesterday.

The colonel appeared on the platform in support of Alan Chambers, federal Liberal candidate for the Nanaimo riding and in the course of an outspoken address charged the Bennett Government with a lack of sympathy for returned men.

TRIBUNALS

Colonel Peck went into the history of the pension question since its inception. In 1930 he recalled the Liberal government, on the report of a parliamentary committee, passed legislation calling for the establishment of pensions tribunals. These traveling tribunals personally investigated all applications of ex-service men for pensions and a new principle—"the service men should be given the benefit of the doubt"—was enacted at that time. The pensions tribunals made a conscientious and determined effort to put that legislation into effect but their work was nullified by the Bennett government.

Colonel Peck quoted from correspondence with Premier Bennett in which Mr. Bennett was reported to have warned the tribunals that they had apparently forgotten that the pension bill of Canada was too high in comparison with the British government's expenditures on pensions.

In other words, said the colonel, Mr. Bennett considered the tribunals had been too favorable to returned men.

SUFFER FOR LOYALTY

A great number of men who served in France, the colonel claimed, suffered from illnesses or disabilities about which they were too loyal and devoted to duty to complain of at the time. They stayed in the line when they might have left it and their troubles were still with them or had become worse since.

"These are the men," said the colonel, "who have nothing on their medical history sheet and are paying the price for their devotion to duty when their applications for pensions are considered."

The speaker claimed that the present organization in adjudicating on such cases was, with one or two exceptions, hostile in its attitude and lacked that sympathy that was all essential.

Mr. Chambers, the candidate, was given a good reception.

Government in Canada must be rationalized, he said. The only permanent basis for recovery lay along the lines of a recovery of trade he said before presenting his views on tariffs and trade treaties.

APPRECIATES COURTESY HERE

Channing Scott, a veteran newspaperman, of Hutchison, Kansas, who arrived in Victoria yesterday on an automobile tour, gives voice to the courtesy he and his wife have received at the hands of Canadians since they crossed the border.

"My wife and I would like to give expression to our appreciation of the courtesy extended to us on all sides since we arrived in Canada," said Mr. Scott. "This is my third visit to Canada and the urge is always with me to come again. This is a wonderful country, with a warm-hearted, friendly people."

Wider Taxation Powers Asked

National Legislation to Increase Field of Municipalities Proposed

Canadian Press

North Bay, Ont., Aug. 27.—Sponsored by Ald. J. J. McRae of Vancouver, a resolution calling for national legislation for wider taxation powers for municipalities, will be before the convention of the Union of Canadian Municipalities here September 3 to 6, it was announced to-day by Mayor W. G. Bullbrook of North Bay, president.

The resolution also proposes to relieve the burden on real property and equalize and stabilize a basis for the responsibilities of social or national services between provincial governments and municipalities. Allocation of an equitable proportion of provincial and national revenues towards the cost of such services is also urged.

Tom Moore Tours The Maritimes

Says Survey For Unemployment Insurance Will Be Made

Halifax, Aug. 27.—"The first duty of the commission is to create a nation-wide system of employment offices before the insurance scheme goes into effect," said Tom Moore, member of the Dominion Employment and Social Insurance Commission, here on a tour of the Maritime Provinces. He has already visited Moncton and Saint John and left to-day for New Glasgow, Sydney and Glace Bay.

"One and three-quarter millions of people will come under the act, but until Canada is throughly surveyed it will be foolish to try to estimate the number of men the commission will employ," Mr. Moore declared.

"Considerable preliminary work has been done and the plan of the organization has been approved by the government. It remains for the Civic Service Commission to fill the major positions."

MUNICIPALITY WILL DO WORK

Relaying of Sewer Line at Skinner's Flats, Esquimalt, to Start Soon

The municipality of Esquimalt will itself carry out the work of relaying the sewer line across Skinner's Flats, it was decided by the municipal council last night at a special session. H. F. Bourne, municipal engineer, will supervise the work, and Esquimalt labor will be employed.

Tenders had been called for the work, but only one bid was received, and this was in excess of the estimate of $5,431 made by the municipal engineer.

The work will get under way as soon as the necessary material can be secured, and is expected to provide employment for some twenty-five men over a period of about twenty-five days. All material used in the work will be of British Columbia origin.

Last week the council passed a by-law authorizing the borrowing of $5,500 from the provincial government to cover the cost of the project.

The work was made necessary through the insanitary conditions resulting in Skinner's Flats, which lie to the west of Lampson Street and to the north of Old Esquimalt Road, from the sinking of the existing sewer pipe in the marshy land. The sinkage of the line had led to seepage at the joints, and on a report from the medical health officer and the municipal engineer it was decided that the work should be carried out as soon as possible to prevent the conditions becoming dangerous.

BEHIND WITH PAYMENTS

Runnemede, N.J., Aug. 27 (Associated Press).—This town is so peaceful that Justice of the Peace Henry Tears does not get enough business to give his wife $8 weekly as ordered by the court. The justice told the judge of the domestic relations court he had had only eight cases since he was elected four years ago.

TRADE BUILDERS

ANOTHER PARTY OF BUSINESS MEN from Britain has arrived in Canada. Similar parties organized by various official and business representatives of Canada in London have been crossing the Atlantic for years to get a better insight into Canadian conditions. They have promoted understanding and established valuable business contacts. The present Maple Leaf Tour party is made up of leaders in the food supply trades. They are being shown Canadian food producing plants, chiefly in eastern Canada.

An especially interesting feature of the party is provided by its inclusion of six enthusiastic young men who had won traveling scholarships offered by the High Commissioner for Canada. They were all employees of firms engaged in the grocery, provision and fruit trades. The Commissioner for Canada inaugurated these traveling scholarships, knowing that the young employees of to-day may be the managers or proprietors of to-morrow, and that they will not be likely to forget the impressions made upon their minds during such a tour.

"Canada's Weekly," a journal published in London, England, devoted to Canadian affairs, sees in such tours a highly commendable step in the development of trade between the two countries. They foster business friendships, oil the machinery of commercial transactions, furnish opportunities for buyers and sellers to exchange views on their respective functions, and disseminate a knowledge of Canada's productive capacity and manufacturing efficiency that could not so well be gained in any other way.

APPLES ON THE MOVE

FROM THE OKANAGAN COMES THE news that the apples are being harvested. The big red apples themselves, the incomparable "Macs" will soon follow. From one end of that magic valley to the other, from Salmon Arm, beside Shuswap Lake, down to Oliver, near the boundary—not forgetting Kamloops—the fruit pickers are out with their ladders, the packing houses, closed these many months, are open and busy again day and night. The cars full of the early apples are moving out to the Coast and the prairies with the fruit that men have loved since the Garden of Eden.

A colorful, picturesque chapter in British Columbia's year, this harvest of the apple crop! It has turned a bare valley between the sagebrush hills into an almost unbroken orchard nearly two hundred miles long—a vast sweep of white blossom in the spring, a treasure trove of red apples in the autumn. It feeds half a dozen little cities and creates a valuable market for our Coast products. It is one of our major exports and in far-away parts of the world the Okanagan apple is known and esteemed by people who do not know where British Columbia lies on the map.

But as you travel through the Okanagan at this season, the harvest seems less of a major industrial operation than a kind of jolly communal effort to get in the crop upon which everyone depends for a living. The excitement of the event is everywhere apparent. The whole country has but one thought—apples. A rise or fall of twenty-five cents a box in the price of apples is as exciting as a new gold discovery in a mining camp. Every man, woman and child who can be spared is out relieving the trees of their luscious burden. By the orchard fences you will see many a smart sedan parked all day while its owner, some business man from Vernon or Kelowna, helps to bring in the fruit. At apple time nothing matters but the crop.

In the apple itself we on the Coast can taste something of the flavor of the Okanagan, stored up with rain and sunshine since last May. But there is a quality in the air and the sunshine up there these days that even the apple can not transport outside the valley. There is a certain sparkle and vigor that is to be found only in the dry belt, well above sea level, perhaps a hint in the evenings of the early frosts that will add the last gorgeous flush of color to the cheeks of King Mac. There is, above all, a human feeling of common interest in the crops, the immemorial satisfaction and excitement of the harvest, on which all men must live through the long winter.

FIVE YEARS AGO

IF YOU WANT TO SEE HOW FAST AND furiously the world has been moving in these last few years, just look at the headlines. The New York Times has been making a somewhat detailed study of them, and its conclusions are rather startling.

Looking back in its files, The Times finds that just five years ago this month, in the last part of August, 1930, the United States Government was saying that the worst of the depression was over, that business had taken the upward turn. The new Smoot-Hawley tariff was counted on to restore prosperity.

President Roosevelt was governor of New York and some of the more reckless prophets were saying he might be presidential timber. Mr. Huey Long was known only as the governor of Louisiana who received distinguished visitors in green silk pyjamas, Father Coughlin was unknown to most Americans, Mr. Townsend had yet to discover his panacea and our own Mr. Aberhart had not been blinded by the overwhelming light of his revelation.

In August, a mere five years ago, Hitler was regarded as a mad fellow who would soon be forgotten. A large part of the western world had no definite idea of where Ethiopia was posted on the map. The Labor government of Ramsay MacDonald was still staggering along and no one had suggested a National Government to save the pound.

Closer to home, Mr. Bennett, then at the zenith of his career, was saying that he would blast his way into the markets of the world—and prosperity—and a majority of the electors apparently believed him. Here in our own province, Dr. Tolmie, back from a caravan tour to Hazelton to launch the Alaska Highway idea, was reorganizing his government and getting ready to put the unemployed boys into road camps. It was the universal Conservative opinion, on which formidable wagers were laid, that Mr. Pattullo could never carry the country.

Mr. McGeer was defeated in the Fraser Valley and hardly anyone had heard of Social Credit. Cadborosaurus had not been discovered either. The skirt, after hovering about knee level, had just started to descend towards the calf, but hesitated, uncertain which way to go. Nudism was a vague rumor and the present fashion in bathing suits would have caused a riot.

All these changes have come in a mere five years, in the sixty months between August, 1930, and August, 1935. No doubt by August, 1940 all the events and most of the leading personalities of this month will seem pretty musty, rather unimportant and a little quaint.

EGGS IN ONE BASKET

THERE IS NO HARM IN PUTTING ALL your eggs in one basket, as some wise man once remarked, if you keep watching the basket carefully.

And that, according to one eminent professor of international law, is precisely the spot the world is in to-day. It has got all of its eggs in one basket, and if it fails to keep its eye on the basket it is going to find itself in the middle of one of the grandest omelets ever seen.

This professor says that whether we like it or not, we must face the fact that the world has become one community. It may be split up into some dozens of separate nations, each one sustained by the most intense patriotism: nevertheless, the facts of world communication, trade and organization bind it together irrevocably.

"The world, which before 1500 was divided into many wholly distinct civilizations, is becoming a single civilization," he says. "The states remote from the centre of Europe's refuse to realize this because they regard the world's civilization as European.

"The growth of international communication is bound to go on, and is bound to increase cultural unity and uniformity of the world in spite of all efforts of states and nationalities to maintain individualism."

This simply amounts to another way of saying that we can no longer afford to be indifferent to the things that are happening in remote parts of the world. The Atlantic is broad and the Pacific is broader—but radio, submarine cables, steamship lines and the vast web of trade and finance have shrunk them to the size of inland lakes, as far as human relationships are concerned.

It would be hard, for instance, to find a quarrel which seemingly had as little power to affect Canada as the present one between Italy and Ethiopia. It is a long way off, and none of its issues touch us in the least.

Yet this pending war will upset European politics very profoundly. It will affect the plans of every state department on earth. It might very easily shatter the fragile peace which now rests upon Europe. And if it does, no man who remembers what happened to us the last time Europe went to war can say that we may escape untouched.

NEW ERA IN GAMBLING

THIS DEPRESSION HAS MANY PECULiar angles than most people realize, and one of the most peculiar seems to be provided by the new craze for gambling.

Thus we learn that race-track betting in such a representative state as Massachusetts recently attained an all-time high, with 90,000 patrons of three Bay State tracks wagering the amazing total of $956,343 in a single day.

This summer, an unofficial tabulation shows that New England wagers have put up approximately $30,000,000 at various New England tracks.

This flood of money to the race tracks of the neighboring republic is a hard thing to understand. The depression is not over—not by many millions in relief expenditures. Yet someone, somewhere, is more able to bet on the dogs and horses than ever before. Where is the answer?

WAR TALK

So glibly do they speak of war,
These men who rise to high command,
You'd think they'd never fought before
And carnage didn't understand.
"We'll fight again next fall," they say,
As if it were a game of skill
And all the guns with which they play
Were toys and not designed to kill.

Do they not know what warfare means?
So glibly do they plan and plot;
I wonder if the ghastly scenes
Of battle are remembered not?
Is human life so cheap a thing
That they can calmly look ahead
To the long cabled lists that bring
The tallying of the maimed and dead?

I wonder as so glibly they Discuss the wars that are to be
If wounded soldiers they would say
Are ever pleasant sights to see.
And often as I read each threat
Once more to arms the troops to call,
I wonder if men can forget
The ghastly horror of it all?

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

TAXPAYERS ALL
The Providence Journal

The great American illusion is that some of us are tax exempt. If you ride, smoke, play, drink, eat or live, you pay taxes.

PROVE IT
The Ottawa Journal

It is made to appear that the riots are the outcome of trivial grievances over food and tobacco and the like. If they are merely trivial, no sympathy need be wasted. Yet there is no telling what to think until everybody has been given a chance to hear the evidence properly presented before an impartial tribunal. If these violent convicts are merely spoiled boys chafing at frivolous irritations, surely it is in the country's interest to prove it rather than allow increasing numbers of persons to go on thinking that there is something wrong at the foundation of the whole prison system.

The Times urges its correspondents to restrict their contributions to 600 words.

Henceforth it positively will not print communications which exceed that length.

THE BOER WAR

To the Editor:—I note Mr. Arthur Brisbane's remarks quoted in your paper last night on what should be America's attitude in case of another war, and was somewhat surprised at your mild retort to one of his usual half-truths in comparing the action of Italy at present with England and the Boer War.

There is really no analogy that I can see—it was not a Tory war by any means—that there were for and against it is true, as there always have been in all wars, including the revolutionary war with the American colonies and the World War. The Boer War was a just war, so said Joseph Cowen, one of the greatest parliamentarians at the time of the Boer War, radical M.P. for Newcastle-on-Tyne, proprietor of The Newcastle Daily and Weekly Chronicle. A Republican in theory and one of Ireland's greatest friends, ever a friend of the oppressed and advocate of the underdog, he said (in one of his last speeches at Newcastle-on-Tyne, addressing a regiment of soldiers just leaving for the front), that it was the most just war England had ever embarked in.

I have no doubt what Mr. Brisbane says about the 90 and 100 per cent of American feeling is true, but why stir up unnecessary bad feeling on the Boer War now when we are more than good friends with the Boers. Mr. Brisbane has a most mischievous way of stirring up strife between England and America.

OBSERVER.

(Editor's Note.—The Times follows the policy of placing the views of public commentators before its readers. When a "state of war" between the British government and President Kruger existed on October 11, 1899 a Tory government was in office at London. When the South Africa Act became law in 1909, that act was the legislation of a Liberal government which produced the good friendship to which our correspondent refers.

ROME AND PEACE

To the Editor:—Mr. Peter Hartnell's letter "Rome and Peace," was very interesting. I am not quite sure, however, whether he means "Catholicism and Peace" or "Rome and Peace."

If he means Catholicism, that is to say the universal spirit par excellence, unadulterated, forgiving, loving and untainted, we, then, can, of course, positively love all good encyclicals and all good efforts of social reform. Good is indeed our weapon and, like the sword of love, we are to use it as warriors and to overcome evil with it. But things "Roman" have at times been highly constructive, but not necessarily the hall-mark of spiritual perfection. Let us reflect for a moment upon the implications of some of Signor Mussolini's Roman attributes. Take for example (without real cause), the conception of God implied by his practice of force. Take his great discomfiture, his moments of surprise when he hears that in all propability Great Britain will keep her treaty word by coming to the aid of a lesser state.

Mussolini (like another power) would use the League as a red herring to bolster strength and to hide his real motive.

He would "mow" the "blacks" down because they are helpless.

I should suggest to Mussolini and his fervent followers that all good things are useful, encyclicals and other reforms.

To be sure, there is overwhelming evidence, bearing witness to a benevolent intelligence operating the scheme of things. And if Mussolini wants to know whether any good can "come out of Nazareth," here it is:

"To have heard that it hath been said thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy.

"But I say unto you, love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, etc., etc.

"Ye have heard that it hath been said, an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth: But I say unto you, that ye resist not evil. . . ." (Matt. v 38, 39, 43, 44). And on this reverent note I will end.

VACCINATION

To the Editor:—The news item, "Monkey Serum for Paralysis," in Saturday's Times gives a rather disgusting picture of what medical science and the greed of unscrupulous manufacturers of animal serums have brought us to. Diseases of whatever kind can only be prevented by clean living and right thinking, and the belief in inocculating the human organism with diseased animal matter as a preventive is a superstition and illusion.

Why of all the dreaded plagues of the past does smallpox alone survive to this day? The answer is because of vaccination. If certain poisons were not artifically kept alive in the human body by vaccination smallpox by this time would be as rare as cholera and yellow fever.

Thanks to the oft-repeated compulsory vaccination of every citizen, young and old, we have become saturated with smallpox virus. Is it any wonder that occasionally this latent taint breaks out in acute epidemics? ALFRED FLEISCHER.
Box 182, Duncan, Aug. 25.

AGAINST WAR

To the Editor:—I was impressed with M. S. Bingham Renton's support of Mrs. Lewis's appeal to all those who are against war.

There is still another "voice," from Winnipeg, the headquarters of the Native Sons of Canada—their resolution that a plebiscite should be taken of the will of the people of Canada as to their wish if war should break out into which we might be drawn, surely the will of the people would influence the government's conclusions.

Everyone who agrees with this suggestion should come forward, be ready to co-operate in carrying out this project, the first steps being to communicate with the local secretary or me—telephone G 6350, or G 5503.

I am sending this letter merely as one of the public because I was asked to do so.

(MRS.) A. COLCLOUGH.
View Royal, Aug. 25.

IT IS A BARBOROUS NOTION

To the Editor:—We are rushing towards the catastrophe of another world war, impelled seemingly by the same urgency—raw material and more room for expansion for surplus populations.

How far the development of the present crisis is due to the machinations of one man (Mussolini) it is hard to decide, but this question of backward nations and vacant, undeveloped territory throughout the world is one that can no longer be neglected by the Great Powers.

It is evident now that the League of Nations would have been better employed all those years in working out a solution for this problem of territorial division among the nations of the world for the needs of population and development.

The time has arrived when no tract of habitable land can be allowed to lie desert and useless while teeming populations crowd together half starving on limited areas.

But this barbarous notion that we must kill and annihilate a people in order to obtain the use of territory is a reversion to primeval days of conquest.

Meantime, we in Canada should lose no time in declaring our attitude towards another war. We should hold public meetings all over the country and pass resolutions that we will not support a war in this crisis; that we will not enlist a single soldier to participate in it, and that we denounce it as criminal folly.

JAMES MOYES.
Cobble Hill, Aug. 25.

RE SECTION 98

To the Editor:—Although my letter, dated August 24, was less than 600 words referred to in the caption above the space, provided for letters to the press, you found it necessary no doubt from lack of space to cut considerable from the letter as written by me, in doing so unwittingly weakening it.

I pointed out that Arthur Evans did not avail himself of the opportunity to go into the box, and the jury held that he was guilty of having advocated an economic or political change by the use of force and violence. Also in the case against Tim Buck, Boychuk, Cohen, Popovitch, Golinsky and Cacic et al some of the accused gave evidence and endeavored to establish that "the Communist Party of Canada section of the Communist International" did not advovate force and violence, and that being the whole defence, the jury decided against the accused and convicted them.

On a previous occasion I endeavored to point out that meetings referred to in section 98 are not public meetings, but meetings of the association as such. If I attend a meeting of the Conservative or Liberal Associations, is it not a fair inference that I am a member? If I attend a meeting of the Trades and Labor Council, is it not a fair inference that I am a delegate? If I attend a meeting of the shareholders of any company is it not a fair inference that I am a shareholder? Otherwise is it likely that I would be permitted to attend such meeting except perhaps for some special reason, which it would be open to me to explain if these organizations were regarded as "unlawful associations," and I was charged with being a member.

As regards the courts of our country, most Canadians regard these institutions as a "strong tower and shield" to the liberties of the subject. They are the result of centuries of struggle by a justice-loving race against an arbitrary executive power, and they have put the British Commonwealth of the nations in the vanguard of civilization.

BUSSES GET EXEMPTIONS

Concessions For Vehicles Operated By West Vancouver Corporation

Several exemptions for the busses operated by the corporation of West Vancouver from Highway Act provisions which ordinary transportation companies must comply with, have been approved by order in council.

The order sets out that public passenger busses owned and operated by the corporation exclusively within the limits of the corporation shall be exempt from provisions of part five of the act, except they will be required to obtain license plates. The cost of these, however, are cut to $2 per annum, a nominal amount to cover the cost of issuing the plates.

The busses need not be marked to show the minimum number of passengers carried, but must stop at railway crossings.

Under the exemption the minister will not be able to refuse, suspend or cancel licenses and the busses are not liable to fine or prosecution.

The provincial police will not be able to search the vehicles without warrant nor to stop the vehicles to permit them to be searched.

No insurance is necessary under the exemptions.

COLONISTS WHO DISDAINED REVOLT

THE American Revolution had been won and the great mass of colonists were jubilant over the victory. But that great event also marked a period of persecution and suffering for thousands of inhabitants who remained loyal to Great Britain, who fought alongside the redcoats during the war, and who continued their loyalty to the mother country after the colonies were lost.

Despised, reviled, and beaten by the victors, rebuked as "Tories," the unhappy loyalists journeyed to Canada, choosing to stay under the wings of Britannia. These were the real founders of the Dominion, and their lot in settling there was as hard as that of the early American pioneers.

This pioneering of the United Empire Loyalists, as they were called, is splendidly portrayed by the bronze statue that stands in Princess' Square, Hamilton, Ont. It is pictured on the ten-cent stamp which Canada issued in 1934, on the 150th anniversary of the loyalists' move to Canada.

Sun's Life Ten Trillion Years

Dr. Beals Says Heat of Centre of Stars Is 50,000,000 Degrees

"The lifetime of the sun is ten trillion years," Dr. C. S. Beals of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory said in pointing out the significance of modern stellar research in determining an astronomical time scale before the Victoria Astronomical Society yesterday evening. Dr. Beals intimated that the sun had already lived half its life.

Last night's talk brought to an end the society's summer study class, and the winter lectures will begin in about a month's time.

"The heat of the centre of a star yeries between 40,000,000 and 50,000,000 degrees," said Dr. Beals in dealing with the physical nature of the luminous bodies of the universe.

He gave some idea of the magnitude of this heat when he said that if a pin point of matter was raised to 50,000,000 degrees it would give out enough light to kill anyone who ventured within a thousand miles of it.

A star was extremely dense at its centre, the lecturer pointed out. It was about 40,000 times as dense as water. But at its surface it was gaseous and the part of the sun that could be seen was much less dense than the atmosphere of the earth.

"The sun is a typical star," Dr. Beals declared. "It is not particularly bright but, on the other hand, it is not particularly dim. In fact, I think I am justified in saying that there are thousands of other stars in the universe that are almost exactly the same as the sun."

STAR SIZE

Stars varied in size from smaller than the earth's diameter to Antares, the largest star, whose diameter was 400,000,000 miles. They varied in temperature from 1,500 degrees to 10,000 degrees, Dr. Beals continued giving more statistics and they also varied in distance from three light years to 100,000 light years.

"However much science advances it will be impossible to discover the physical constituents of the stars," one famous philosopher of some centuries ago had declared. This appeared logical enough in his day, Dr. Beals said, but with the invention of the spectroscope all was changed.

By the spectra scientists could tell the elements on the stars, the heat of the stars and even the motion of the stars. A great deal of spectroscopy was being done at the Saanich observatory, the lecturer said.

The astronomers on the little Saanich Mountain were also working on measuring the distances of the stars. Dr. Beals described the two methods used in this work.

"Stars are gathered in swarms in the sky," the astronomer declared. "They do not stretch into infinity."

Around the sun was a vast swarm of stars which was known as the milky way. This galaxy had a shape something like a thin watch, and the milky way that could be observed in the sky was looking through the long end of the "watch."

Altogether there were billions of stars in the milky way, but outside this there were other galaxies of stars. Dr. Beals showed lantern slides of the Magellan Cloud, and spiral nebulae which looked like mighty whirlpools in the sky.

"Of course when I spoke about the farthest star being 100,000 light years away, I was not referring to the extra gallactic systems," Dr. Beals said. "These other swarms of stars are millions of light years away."

One of the most important of the modern discoveries was that the milky way was in a state of rotation. And, "just as though our galaxy was unpopular," the other nebulae were moving away and the farther they got away the faster they went, the lecturer said.

"Eddington believes that this extraordinary phenomenon is due to the progress of matter and the Einstein theory of Relativity, but I don't know whether we can agree with him or not," Dr. Beals said in conclusion.

Miss Phoebe Riddle gave an interesting talk on the constellations and told of the legendary and mythology surrounding the naming of the various groups of stars.

H. Boyd Brydon, president of the club thanked the speakers. Commander H. R. Tingley was in the chair.

THOUSANDS AT STREET DANCES

Free Dance Week Ends in Vancouver; 60,000 Attended

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Aug. 27.—While as many more looked on, some 4,000 couples shuffled over the pavement in the lee of the twenty-storey Marine Building last night to the strains of a fourteen-piece orchestra, bringing to an estimated 60,000 the number who have attended Vancouver's open-air free dance week.

Sponsored by the city council with the idea of creating a gay spirit amongst residents and visitors alike as a prelude to the Canada Pacific Exhibition which opens here Wednesday, the dance week cost approximately $650, which was paid by public subscription.

From 9 p.m. until midnight, sometimes later, the couples dance over a two-block area on Hastings and Burrard Streets where the two intersect near the waterfront.

The dancing will end to-night.

WOMAN LAUDS NAZI REGIME

Startles U.S. Meeting By Blaming Jews For Their Treatment

Associated Press

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 27.—A defence of Nazi Germany, spoken quietly by a woman in the midst of a meeting devoted to the "errors" of Nazilism, startled the Institute of Human Relations here yesterday.

A tall, strongly-built woman rose from the audience and explained she said she was Frau Schirmacher-Oncken of Berne, Switzerland, widow of a German and mother of a young Nazi.

"The truth of the matter is Germans prefer inside slavery from a government that is willing to rescue them from outside slavery of the Entente. The latter was not more bearable," Frau Schirmacher-Oncken said.

"America passed 160 years ago and seventy years ago the same experience. American people revolted against the suppression of England in 1776 and made order in their inner affairs in 1865. Just the same thing now happens in Germany."

Whispered exclamation of disagreement interrupted the quiet interest of her audience, however, when she asserted that Jews could blame some of the anti-Jewish discrimination in Germany on themselves because Jews "were not in their own homes in Germany," and in pre-Hitler days "did not hold themselves in the background."

She criticized Protestants and Catholics, too.

"I lived thirty years in Germany," she said. "I know that most of the Protestant ministers preached there a bourgeois Christianity, imagining themselves to be men of property in the religious sphere and helping nobody to accept the salvation of Jesus Christ, having never experienced salvation themselves. And Catholics used their power upon Catholic German souls to make politics and to use in selfish aims the Catholics Centre Party."

Baroness Is Not Badly Scarred

Associated Press

Gerona, Spain, Aug. 27.—Baroness Maud von Thyssen, seriously injured in the automobile crash that cost the life of ex-prince Alexis Mdivani, has almost completely recovered and scars from injuries on her face are barely noticeable, a source close to the attending physician said to-day.

She is being confined to the hospital, it was said, because the physician fears some nervous trouble. She has reportedly suffered several nervous attacks, once assertedly throwing a plate at her husband and hitting the physician.

Miss Gloria Wilson, who is visiting friends in Seattle, will return to-morrow to her home in Victoria.

Weddings

INNES—BROWN

The marriage is announced of Phyllis Elizabeth, daughter of the late W. Ellis and Mrs. Brown, 1525 Prospect Place, to Mr. Duncan Innes of Edmonton. The wedding took place in Seattle on Wednesday, August 21.

OUELLETTE—NIX

St. Columba Anglican Church, Burnside Road, was the scene of a quiet wedding on Saturday evening, when Rev. F. Comley united in marriage Hazel Edith, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Nix, Hollywood Road, and Mr. Clifford Harold Ouellette of Crofton, Vancouver Island.

The bride was given away by her father and was attractively dressed in a beige colored swagger suit with a white hat and matching accessories. The bride's only attendant was Miss Winnie Pearce, and Mr. Alfred Nix, brother of the bride, supported the groom. L. A. Smith played the wedding music.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents and later the young couple left on a short honeymoon. Mr. and Mrs. Ouellette will take up residence at Crofton.

RYAN—COOKSON

Of much interest to the many Vancouver Island friends of the bride, who lived with her parents here for a number of years before returning to England to reside, was the wedding of Rosemary Violet Ridgeway Cookson, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cookson of The Grange, North Curry, to Lieutenant Patrick Edward James Ryan, Royal Navy, only son of the late Lieutenant E. W. Blackwood Ryan, R.N., and of Mrs. Ryan of Harford, Ivybridge.

The ceremony took place on Wednesday, July 31, at the Church of St. Peter and St. Paul, North Curry, Taunton, Somerset, England. The Rev. R. S. Bagshaw, uncle of the bride, officiated, assisted by the Rev. A. Gossage Robinson, according to The London Times.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin with a cowl-shaped neckline and long, tight-fitting sleeves. The train was cut in one with the skirt, and a pearl headdress held the old family Brussels lace veil in place. She carried a bouquet of auratum lilies.

Anne and Susan Peard, in frocks of apricot-colored taffeta with puff sleeves and yokes of chiffon, and carrying Victorian posies of orange-colored roses, were the trainbearers. The six grown-up bridesmaids, Miss Elizabeth Hoyer Millar (cousin of the bride), Miss Molly Twigg (cousin of the bridegroom), Miss Petronilla Dunsterville, Miss Molly Hamilton, Miss Elizabeth Newbould and Miss Phoebe Waterfield, wore dresses of apricot-colored taffeta with bishop sleeves and tucked yokes of chiffon to match, and flame-colored taffeta sashes. They had halo headdresses of gold leaves and carried bouquets of flame rambler roses.

Lieutenant John Shiffner, R.N., was best man, and, like the bridegroom, wore full dress uniform. Naval officers formed a guard of honor as the bride and bridegroom left the church.

A reception was afterwards held at The Grange.

LIPSTICK BEST SUMMER STANDBY

Diverts Attention From Dusty Skin; Pick Darker Shade When Suntanned

By ALICIA HART

Lipstick is the one cosmetic a girl on vacation shouldn't try to do without. If she likes, she can give her face and throat a rest from creams and lotions—her hair a holiday from under-the-drier sessions, but, if she values her appearance and wants to prevent chapping and dryness, she'll use her lipstick frequently.

A fresh coat of lipstick gives you a healthy, vivacious look and, no matter how dusty your skin may be, bright red lips make the grime less conspicuous.

Remove every trace of the last application and smooth on a new layer even more often than you do at home. If your lips are naturally high-colored, carry a stick of plain pomade whenever you set out on a motor tour or a camping trip. It won't make your lips any brighter, of course, but it will give them a moist, attractive appearance and, in addition, prevent rough, chapped edges.

Remember that as soon as your skin becomes several shades darker you ought to get new lipstick and rouge. This is your chance to go in for the rather exotic orange or raspberry tones. Sun-tanned blondes and brown-haired girls look well with orange rouge and matching lipstick. Raspberry shades are good on true brunettes and also on medium brunettes who have dark eyes.

One important cosmetic house puts out orange nail polish to use on finger and toe nails. It matches a brilliant rouge and lipstick set. Another manufacturer makes dark, rich raspberry polish to harmonize with raspberry rouge and lipstick for sun-tanned complexions.

New York, Aug. 27.—The Daily News to-day quoted the former Marian Snowden as saying she would seek a "friendly divorce" from Prince Rospigliosi.

The prince, ill at Long Island Inn, confirmed the rift, the paper said. The princess is a sister of the former Janet Snowden, who failed in efforts to obtain an annulment of her marriage to Prince Don Caravita of Italy.

"Incompatibility will be my charge," the princess was quoted.

WOMEN FORTIFY MAN'S CASTLE

Atmosphere American Man Misses at Home Created at Work, Says Magazine

Canadian Press

New York, Aug. 27.—"Lost domesticity is found in offices," says Fortune Magazine, and proceeds to philosophize thus:

"Let no man deceive himself. The great American office is much more completely a female bailiwick than the great American home. It has, it is true, its necessary male. But so has the ant hive, which is essentially neuter, its necessary queen. The male is the name on the door, the hat on the rack and the smoke in the corner room.

"But the male is not the office. The office is the competent woman at the other end of the buzzer, the two young ladies chanting his name monotonously into the mouthpieces of a kind of gutta-percha halter, the four girls in the glass coop pecking out his initials with pink finger nails on the keyboards of four voluble machines, the half dozen assorted skirts whisking through the filing cases of his correspondence and the elegant miss in the reception room recognizing his friends and disposing of his antipathies with the pleased voice, and the impersonal eye of a presidential consort.

WHAT MAN NEEDS

"Women occupy the great American office simply and solely because they are women. Wages have very little to do with it. Finger dexterity has nothing to do with it. The whole point of the whole problem is merely that the modern office necessitates a daily, intimate and continuing relation which is much more possible between a man and a number of women than between a man and a number of men. That relation, it is hardly necessary to say, it not the relation which plagues the imagination of the she novelists who write of passion in industry. The blond stenographer with the slick sleazy stockings is not its symbol. Its symbol is the competent, agreeable, thirty-year-old, intelligently dressed woman who sits in imperturable self-respect behind the secretarial desks of half the major offices in the country.

"The whole point of the whole problem, in other words, is that women occupy the offices because the male employer wants them there. Why he wants them there is another question which cannot be answered merely by saying that once there they take to the work very nicely.

"In the process the upper class home, as the upper class home was known to the Victorians, disappeared. The male was no longer master in his own dining-room and dreadful in his own den nor did a small herd of wives, daughters and sisters hear his voice and tremble. He was, on the contrary, the more or less equal mate of a more or less unpredictable woman. And he resented it.

PARADISE RECREATED

"He resented the loss of his position. He regretted the old docility, the old obedience, the old devotion to his personal interests. And finding himself unable to recreate the late, lost paradise in his home, he set about recreating it in his office. What he wanted in the office was not the office mistress described at least fifty-two times a year by American short-story writers. His very pretty and very clever and very expensive wife was already mistress enough and to spare.

"What he wanted in the office was something as much like the vanished wife of his father's generation as could be arranged—someone to balance his cheque book, buy his railroad tickets, check his baggage, get his seats in the fourth row, take his daughter to the dentist, listen to his side of the story, give him a courageous look when things were blackest."

QUEEN PAINTS SCOTTISH LANDSCAPES AS DIVERSION

By MILTON BRONER

London, Aug. 27.—Painting pretty pictures of Scotch lochs and mountains in the endeavor to forget for the time such very prosaic things as the gold standard, unemployment and industrial depression, a certain middle-aged, stoutish, pink-faced lady recently mounted her easel in end of Loch Earn in Perthshire. Here, instead of thinking of Dutch cheese, she can sketch Ben Vorlick, one of the great Sir Walter Scott's favorite peaks.

She will need all the rest and quiet she can get for she happens to be wealthy Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, the only real twenty-four-karat woman ruler in the world. And like old Queen Victoria, when she rules, she rules. The dutch found all about it the other day. Many of them were pleased. Some were not pleased and more may be heard about it when the Dutch Parliament meets early this fall.

QUEEN WILHELMINA

HIT BY HARD TIMES

Little Holland used to be very well off. With her big East Indies empire of Java, Sumatra and other great islands rich in coffee, rubber, tin and other valuable world commodities, she managed to keep her people at home employed, fairly prosperous and fairly happy. World depression has hit Holland and her colonies just as it has struck the rest of the world. There is unemployment at home. Industry has been hit hard. The wealth-producing exports from the colonies have dimished.

To battle with all these things, the Premiership of Holland was given to old Hendrikus Colijn, Queen Wilhelmina's favorite statesman.

NO EASY JOB

To form a cabinet in a country like Holland is no easy job. Instead of the two big political parties that America knows and three that Britain has, there is a multiplicity of them in Holland. The lower house of the Dutch Parliament contains 100 members. The last election returned twenty-eight Roman Catholics from Holland's "Solid South," twenty-two Socialists, nine Liberals and 7 Radicals. Of the Protestant parties, the Anti-Revolutionaries of Colijn elected twelve and the Christian Historicals got ten. It has been the custom to form an extra-party cabinet. That is, the men are chosen from the various parties but without specific coalition of those parties to sustain the cabinet.

STAYS ON GOLD

Early this year Premier Colijn's policy was at all costs to balance the budget and keep Dutch money on the gold standard. To do this he has presented to the Parliament successive waves of bills. One set inflicted more taxes. The others made more cuts in wages and salaries.

Neither the Roman Catholic nor the Socialist party openly advocated inflation as a cure for the country's ills. But they insisted the people should receive some reward for the sacrifices they were asked to make. While the government was increasing taxes and decreasing salaries, they said it should also cut down debts and rents, reduce the fixed charges upon industry and help bring down the cost of living.

These were very real grievances which Colijn only half-heartedly met. Thereupon Dr. P. J. M. Aalberst, leader of the catholic party, refused to give the government a vote of confidence. Colijn resigned.

TRY, TRY AGAIN

Queen Wilhelmina sent for Aalberse to form a cabinet. But she tied his hands by insisting that such a cabinet must be formed upon a wider basis than a mere union of the Catholic and Socialist parties. Aalberse failed. The queen once more charged Colijn to form a cabinet which he did, including four Catholic members or one more than in his last cabinet.

Colijn, in a broadcast address to the country, insisted that his measures introducing important quotas and subsidizing home agriculture by hundreds of millions of guilders might have been costly to the taxpayers, but had undoubtedly also prevented widespread increase in unemployment. He said the government had spent hundreds of millions upon the execution of useful public works and proposed to do more of the same.

This fall when Parliament meets, he may have a rough ride.

TOO DOMINEERING

Scenery-painting Wilhelmina will also probably come in for some toasting. The Dutch like their queen, but they are a democratic people and think she has been a bit too domineering. In the first place, when she asked Professor Aalberse to form a cabinet, she circumscribed his activity. In the next place, when he, leader of the biggest party, failed, custom and courtesy required that she should summon M. Alberda, leader of the Socialists, the next strongest party in the Chamber of Deputies. Instead, he was ignored.

Roumania Buys Woman A Plane

Her Courage and Skill Recognized by Nation; London Musician Writing Reminiscences.

London (By Mail)—A woman who has shown such courage and skill in the air that her country is buying her an aeroplane is visiting London to take a refresher course in flying.

She is Miss Smaranda Braescu—Roumania's crack woman pilot.

While she is here she will choose her first aeroplane, to be paid for with money subscribed by Roumanians, rich and poor alike.

This, in brief, is her remarkable story, told to a press representative at the aerodrome where she is having her refresher course.

"Ever since I was at school," she told me in French—she knows little English—"I have longed to fly my own aeroplane.

"I spent hours and hours poring over maps and newspaper cuttings about famous flights. I wanted to win some distinction for Roumania, which is, perhaps, too near the Orient to be altogether in sympathy with the modern spirit. I wanted to show that women can be just as skilful and enduring in the air as men.

"But what was I to do? I was poor. . . .

"So one day, without saying a word to anyone, I left the art school where I was studying, went to Berlin and bought a parachute. I thought of earning money by making parachute descents, but all I had gained after some months was a broken arm. What a disaster!

WORLD PARACHUTE RECORD

"Then came a very great day. I won the world's record with a drop of 20,000 feet, and for that I was decorated by King Carol."

With pride she opened a little box and took from it a golden cross with a bar across the ribbon. Cherished with it was a photograph of herself paraded in a line of officers—the only woman and the only civilian there.

"The medal gives me the right to parade on such ceremonial occasions and to dine with the king," she explained.

When her record was snatched from her by an American, there was a public demand in Roumania that she should be given the opportunity of winning it back, so, aided by a subscription, she beat the American with a drop of 24,000 feet.

"When I returned home from the United States I was feted all over the place," she said, "but that did not mean very much. What mattered was that I should get my chance to do the things I really wanted to do."

Now she is to achieve all her ambitions. The Roumanian public are giving her a Miles Hawk single-seater machine with a range of 2,000 miles.

With this she hopes to attempt record flight from London to Rome and from Rome to Bucharest, and then, in October, perhaps, attack the record to Cape Town.

"I must achieve something real now. Not for myself—for Roumania, and for the sake of those who have given me my chance."

Miss Braescu has never trained for her parachute descents.

"All you need," she told me, "is a good heart and a good stomach for the foods you meet upon your travels."

SEVENTY-SEVEN—AND STILL WRITING

A seventy-seven-year-old woman, Mrs. Rose Newmarch, who is one of the greatest living authorities on European music, has begun writing her reminiscences.

During the last twenty-seven years she has written more than 2,000 analytical descriptions of musical compositions played at musical festivals and at London's famous Promenade Concerts at the Queen's Hall.

Her descriptions, published in programme form, have added to the enjoyment of thousands of music lovers.

She has seen musical tastes widen and develop as broadcasting of good music has made first-class orchestras available to every home.

"Broadcasting," she said when discussing her forty years of "Proms," "has done an immense amount to widen the public knowledge of music and of its technique."

Mrs. Newmarch first became recognized as a music authority for her translation from the Russian of "The Life and Letters of Tchaikovsky." This was published in 1906.

Two years later Sir Edgar Speyer, then "ruler" of the Promenade Concerts, asked her to write the analytical programmes.

Mrs. Newmarch has made a special study of music in Russia. She studied the language in 1895—during an illness. She paid her first visit to Russia in 1897, and went there, off and on, until the Great War.

"With the possible exception of Stravinsky," she told me, "I do not think that Russia has produced a composer of the front rank since the days when I first knew the country.

SOVIET AND MUSIC

"It seems that one effect of the Soviet regime must be to stifle the production of good music. We have had one or two orchestral works imitating railway engines and factories and that sort of thing, but a regime which is so frankly utilitarian as the Soviet simply does not care about art."

Mrs. Newmarch is, to use her own words, "a pretty good linguist," and, after a special study of Russian music, she has examined that of Bohemia, and now Czechoslovakia.

"The Czechs," she said, "are one of the most musical of the Slavonic peoples. My latest work has been an English translation of Frederic Smetana's comic opera 'The Bartered Bride,' and I hope that it will soon be performed in London."

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

IF WEANED BABY REFUSES COW'S MILK, DON'T FORCE IT ON HIM

When the weaned baby refuses cow's milk, it is possible that there is some personal sensitivity to it, and the baby's refusal then has a sound basis. It is, of course, possible that weaning a baby in hot weather has resulted in some temporary disturbance which will be overcome by a decreased diet. (But it is possible also that the inclusion of some other food in the diet is upsetting the baby, and thus causing his illness.)

At any rate it is wise and sensible when such a condition remains constant for a month to decide that it isn't a trivial thing and to consult a good pediatrist who will review the baby's history, note his present behavior, and come to a conclusion as to its cause. The mother is not the person to do this, as she often draws the wrong inferences.

WON'T TAKE MILK

"My eight months old baby was breast fed until one month ago," writes Mrs. C. R. C. "He weighs eighteen pounds. Now he will take only orange juice, cod liver oil and solid food, three times a day, and will not drink one drop of milk. I have tried him with spoon, cup and bottle, and he refuses them all.

"He has gained practically nothing the last month. For the last three days he has vomited his food after every meal. I am afraid to feed him for fear of this vomiting. He has no teeth as yet. How is his weight? Can you help me?"

I hesitate to give advice for problems of this type. The baby needs to have personal supervision.

MAY BE THE HEAT

The heat may have caused a temporary upset, or the baby may be sensitive to both eggs and milk (the first of which you included in your diet) and this may have led to the disturbance which you have mentioned the last three days.

So that you may understand more about personal sensitivities, I suggest you send me a self addressed and stamped envelope and let me send you the leaflet, called, "Food For the Allergic Child," and with the leaflet I shall be glad to send the leaflet, "Diet from Nine to Twelve Months." But before making use of this general information, do have the child given a personal examination, to make sure that some other agency is not responsible for the continued digestive disturbance. Forcing milk would be a mistake until you know whether this particular child might not suffer from its inclusion in the diet The weight is good.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

SUMMER SQUASH TASTELESS? NOT WHEN COOKED LIKE THIS

By MARY E. DAGUE

There's no question but that summer squash is a treat when fried or mashed, but I've hit on some clever ways of preparing it that make it a favorite of even those people who consider it tasteless.

Cymling or patty pan, crookneck and marrow, as well as the tiny Italian squash known as Zucchini, all appear about the same time and are delicately flavored. When these squash are very fine grained and tender, they are rich sources of vitamins and need not be peeled, nor have seeds removed. Later, as they mature, the skin and seeds must be discarded as in winter squash.

Try steaming summer squash and serving it with a white sauce to which cheese has been added. This dish is well adapted to the needs of children as well as adults.

Squash scalloped with tomatoes makes an appetizing luncheon main dish. Serve it with pumpernickle and finish the meal with a hearty dessert, such as peach dumplings.

SQUASH SCALLOPED WITH TOMATOES

Three small summer squash, 1 medium sized onion, ½ cup cooking oil, 4 ripe tomatoes, ½ cup chopped celery, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup grated cheese.

Wash squashes and cut in half-inch slices. Fry in cooking oil in pan until tender. Put to one side of pan and pour off all but two tablespoons oil. Add onion thinly sliced and cook until brown. Put a layer of prepared squash in baking dish and cover with tomatoes peeled and cut in slices. Sprinkle with onion, add seasoning and celery and cover with cheese. Continue layer for layer until all is used. Put in a moderate oven for twenty minutes to cook tomatoes and melt cheese. Increase heat for last few minutes in order to brown the top. Serve from baking dish.

Corn cut from the cob can be added to this combination along with shredded sweet green pepper.

PEACH DUMPLINGS

Four fine large peaches, 1½ cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 4 tablespoons butter or other shortening, ¾ cup milk (about), 4 teaspoons sugar, 1 cup syrup.

Pare and remove stones from peaches. Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder and cut in shortening with pastry blender. Cut in milk, using enough to make a soft dough. Knead lightly on a floured molding board and roll into a sheet about ½ inch thick. Cut into four squares and place a peach with the cavity filled with sugar in the centre of each. Wrap dough around the peach, moistening edges with milk to form a tight seam. Make a syrup of four tablespoons granulated sugar and eight tablespoons water and put in a buttered baking dish. Brush each dumpling with melted butter and put in the baking dish with the seamed side down. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for thirty minutes. Baste several times with the syrup in the pan. Serve warm with sugar and cream.

TO-MORROW'S MENU

Breakfast: Pineapple juice, cereal, cream, creamed ham on toast, milk coffee.

Luncheon: Squash scalloped with tomatoes, pumpernickle, baked peach dumpling's milk, tea.

Dinner: Macaroni and liver timbale, creamed onions, head lettuce with Thousand Island dressing, apple crisp, milk, coffee.

Air Stewardess

When the plane stopped Irene saw a young girl waiting at the Fresno airport. Eagerness was in every line of her from the blue hat which matched her eyes to the tips of her ridiculously high heeled black and white shoes.

Norman Drury, sauntering out with the rest of the passengers, kissed her. She seized his arm and walked into the station with him prattling like an animated toy. Her chalk white prettiness was artificial, but there was the same desperate adoration in her blue eyes which had been in the eyes of that other girl who was his wife.

When the passengers returned to the plane she was with him. Sitting across the aisle from him, reaching across to talk to him or touch his hand.

The name on her ticket was La Verne McNair. She was going to San Francisco.

"The poor little fool," thought Irene. "I wonder if she knows he has a wife and two children in Los Angeles."

She watched with disillusioned eyes as they left the plane and walked arm in arm toward the waiting limousine.

CHAPTER VIII

"Don't let it get you down," advised Bill, following the direction of Irene's eyes.

"How can girls be as crazy over men like that?"

"That's precisely the kind they are crazy about," he complained.

"Virginia would love that."

"Oh, Virginia!" he said, his voice softening. "She's different. I suppose seeing the antics of this film salesman will strengthen your resolution not to go out with passengers."

"Absolutely," she declared. "I'll never have a date with one again."

But less than a week later, on her very next trip to Seattle, Irene Gardner accepted a date with another passenger.

He was exceedingly attractive, big and athletic looking, with broad, dependable shoulders and the level, grayed-eyed glance of a man without a nerve in his body. But is was neither his clean blondness nor any of his other undeniable charms which made the air hostess break her resolution. On the contrary she scarcely realized these until afterwards.

It was the name on the passenger list which influenced her. A name she had reason to recognize even if she had not seen the undoubted resemblance in his features to that of his well known father.

"You're Dr. Stephen Reagan's son?" Irene asked, although she already knew the answer.

He smiled with the engaging frankness of an unspoiled boy.

"Yes. Do you know my father?"

"I've met him at the hospital."

"Then you are probably one of his admirers?"

"Anyone who has ever seen him operate is," she answered.

"He must be wonderful," he admitted with a flash of white teeth. "But he's going to be a pretty difficult parent to live up to, sons of famous fathers being supposed to be notoriously otherwise."

"I'm sure you'll be an exception," Irene answered, swept by a sea of conflicting emotions. Curiosity, the mad desire to fling caution to the wind and question him.

"I understand your sister and Dr. Bartlett Ralston are engaged." To say, "Dr. Ralston is an old friend of mine. I believe he's going into your father's office?" To beg, "You've seen the man I love. Tell me about him. How did he look? What did he say?"

Knowing she dared say none of these things and afraid some incautious remark might leap unbidden from her lips, she left him to read his newspaper. It was going to be another rough trip and while she was beginning to be used to it, and was able now to keep her balance and move about without feeling quanly, several of the less experienced passengers needed her attention. Irene heated bouillon and served hot tea and coffee, at the same time bringing pillows, adjusting seats, and answering questions.

"Isn't it rougher than usual?"

"Why don't we land?"

"If I had any idea it would be like this, I would have gone on the train," wailed one airsick woman.

Stephen Reagan, however, seemed to accept the roughness as one of the necessary hazards of air travel and stared from his window, asking no questions and demanding no service.

There was a low ceiling mist and the visibility was poor. When the pilot's buzzer summoned Irene, she suspected they were going to make a forced landing.

"We're going to have to land at Eugene," he said. "Better get your refunds made out."

Obediently Irene made her way to the back of the cabin and started computations, but before she had finished them, the lights from the emergency field at Eugene had blinked into sight and they were landing.

Engrossed in her figuring, Irene had no time to think of Stephen Reagan. Most of the passengers were in a hurry to reach their destinations and it was their business to make inquiries, buy tickets, and take care of the luggage.

She had to figure out to a penny how much money was due on the unused portion of each ticket and write checks refunding it. Later she would have endless reports to make to the company.

But one passenger elected to remain with the plane and this was Stephen Reagan. When she offered him a refund on his ticket to Seattle, he refused it.

"No, thanks! I'm in no hurry. I'll stay with the plane."

"But no one else is waiting except the pilots and myself."

"Fine!" he cried with his wholehearted smile. "That makes it perfect."

The pilot assured them it would be several hours before they could go up again and Stephen insisted that Irene accompany him in his search of food.

"You must be starved," he said. "I know you hadn't a chance to eat anything on the plane."

"Oh, I had an early lunch before I got on."

"Come with me and have another one," he insisted.

It was not until they were seated across from each other at a restaurant table that Irene noticed what an attractive person he really was.

"About my age," Bart had said, which would make him in his late twenties, but he looked younger than Bart. He told her he was a graduate of Stanford and was working for a publishing company.

"I should like to have a publishing business of my own some day so I'm anxious to learn anything I can about it," he confided.

Then he mentioned Peggy. "My sister has been attending school in the east but she's home again now. Mother died when Peggy was born, so naturally father and I have spoiled her, but she's a great kid. You'll like her."

His happy assurance of her interest and the implication of other future meetings both pleased and disturbed her. Suppose she did see him again? What would Bart do and say and think if she met him when she was with Stephen Reagan?

"Tell me all about yourself," he begged. "It must have taken a lot of courage to decide to follow a profession like yours. Are you ever afraid? Do you have premonitions of danger or stop to think about what might happen?"

"At first I did. I don't think anything about it any more."

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 28, 1935

Benefic aspects dominate to-day, according to astrology. It is a time for strenuous effort, especially in promoting any important project.

Again big business men are to engage in ambitious enterprises and many positions will be offered to trained men and women, the seers prophesy.

Warning is given by astrologers that labor difficulties may have serious results in retarding national prosperity and in causing policies of retaliation. The stars show Mars powerful next month, in a place that encourages unrest among workers.

This is a lucky away for those who seek employment. Men and women who control human destinies are likely to be in friendly mood toward applicants.

Planetary influences extend to the federal government, where there is to be a widespread turnover among employees and many sweeping investigations of relief agencies. Astrologers foretell surprises not yet visioned by powers that be.

Speculation is to lure persons in many walks of life and the gambling spirit will rule. Protests against methods of courting Lady Luck will be numerous in the autumn.

Cocktail parties' are to lose popularity owing to unpleasant publicity affecting persons in high places. A scandal of national portent is prognosticated.

A London astrologer prophesies for England a new political faction composed of the middle class financial leaders. The high cost of fighting forces may be one of its issues.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of improved fortunes to which friends or relatives may contribute.

Children born on this day probably will be dynamic and ambitious to succeed because of confidence in their power to improve humanity.

Count Tolstoi, Russian novelist and reformer, was born on this day, 1828. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, German author, 1749, and Lucius Adelno Sherman, university dean, 1847.

George H. Smith Of Toronto Dies

Toronto, Aug. 27.—George H. Smith, vice-president and general manager of the Canada Permanent Mortgage Corporation, died at his home yesterday. He was sixty-nine years old.

Mr. Smith was found unconscious in bed Tuesday from a stroke after having retired in his usual health. He did not regain consciousness.

Mr. Smith joined the Canada Permanent Mortgage Corporation as a stenographer when sixteen years old. He was appointed secretary of the firm in 1888, and in 1912 was made superintendent of branches. In 1916 he was elected a director of the Canada Permanent Trust. Two years later he was made assistant general manager of the Canada Permanent Mortgage, was elected a director in 1922 and in the same year became general manger of both organizations. He was named first vice-president in 1931, after becoming second vice-president in 1928.

Mr. Smith was born in 1866. Surviving are the widow, formerly Mary Collett; five daughters and three sons. Mrs. Alex Sinclair, Port Arthur, Ont., is a daughter.

The gift of gab—of pert repartee and vivid vocal expression—is the talent of pretty Carol Dee, the vivacious little red-headed foil and "stooge" for Marty May, Columbia's new comedian, and his hilarious sketches. Radio Healthiest Thing In Europe

NBC Vice-president Returns From Two-months' Tour of Inspection on Continent; Says Network Might Cover Ethiopian War From Front Line

New York, Aug. 27.—"Radio is the healthiest thing in Europe to-day. Governments may disagree—and do. War may be just over the horizon. But," said John F. Royal, NBC vice-president in charge of programmes, who has just returned from a two months' tour of England and sixteen continental countries, "radio is an international factor for goodwill."

In his first interview since his return, Royal gave startling impressions of the foreign broadcasting situation, gleaned from close observation and conferences with political and radio officials in France, Germany, Italy, Russia, Austria and a dozen other countries.

"Every country I visited is radio-conscious to an amazing extent," the NBC executive said. "In Germany they are broadcasting to the world twenty-four hours a day. This is propaganda. They make no bones about it. In many parts of the country I found 'listening posts' where as many as 2,000 Germans are gathered around a single set. Russia is broadcasting to the world. England is doing a marvelous job.

"Every foreign country wants a North and South American audience, and I predict that within the next eighteen months we will see the greatest programme competition in the history of entertainment. By that time all the European countries will be equipped for short wave sending and receiving and, with the further improvement of long and short wave receiving sets every radio listener will have the world in his living room!"

"How do American programmes stack up against those in foreign lands?" he was asked.

"I say, modestly, we have nothing to be ashamed of in this country," he replied. "Generally speaking, I didn't find them doing anything any better abroad than we are doing it here. Of course, if you go into any country with your eyes open you can pick up a few ideas. But these are details."

INTERNATIONAL EXCHANGE

One of the principal reasons for Royal's tour was to better the "balance of trade" in international programmes. Last year for about 350 programmes rebroadcast by NBC from Europe there were only forty-five programmes sent from NBC to the other side. The numbers will be far more even in the future, Royal said confidently.

"Every place I went I found them clamoring for more American dance music," he said. "You don't know what the term 'popular music' means t'l you see how popular our dance tunes are abroad. In Russia they asked me for broadcasts that would feature week-old tunes. They can't get them quick enough or hot enough, it seems."

At least, when pressed to the wall by reporters, Royal admitted NBC would try its best to bring direct broadcasts from the battlefield when, as and if there should be one.

"Radio has been in the front line every place else. We certainly ought to be in the front line trench in case of war—although that's a difficult thing to promise," he explained.

Another experiment probably will take the form of ancient history lessons, to be broadcast from the Colosseum, the Acropolis, the Appian Way and other Greek and Roman historic spots.

There will be interesting pickups from Greenland and Iceland and more frequent exchanges from the British Broadcasting Corporation.

"I am more than ever impressed with our good fortune here in being able to hear the best talent in the world," Royal said, "regardless of who the artists are or where they came from. Frankly, I made that statement in Europe. It may have been controversial, but I couldn't resist telling them that in American broadcasting we believe art cannot be nationalized. That we give anyone a hearing and accept him solely on the basis of his talent."

On the basic points of programme choice, however, Royal found audiences in all the assorted countries agree.

"People listen to a good programme. They seek good programmes. And the good programmes live while the bad ones die out. This is true everywhere."

GERMANY'S PLANS

Sidelights of his conversation were these items:

That Germany is planning a huge new building for short wave broadcasting only. This will contain forty-four small and sight large studios; two new transmitters. Its purpose—t "Sell Germany to the world."

Dutch broadcasting is supported by popular contribution.

Italy broadcast 250 operas last year. They were tuned in all over Europe.

Comedy Royal found sadly lacking from most foreign broadcasting schedules.

He brought back no artists or acts because "I didn't hear anything in radio over there that I thought would set America on fire. But then, of course, mine wasn't a talent scouting tour."

CONNIE CARRIES ON

Connie Gates, whose popularity as one of the Columbia network's favorite blue singers steadily increases, came to New York several years ago after making her radio debut in her home town of Cleveland, O. This summer she stars in three of her own shows over the Columbia network on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons.

Provincial Track and Field Championships Here To-morrow

THE SPORTS MIRROR

HORSEMEN who are campaigning at the Washington Jockey Club's Longacres track are breathing a sigh of relief. On Sunday the third of a series of disastrous accidents occurred and resulted in the destroying of My Prospero. Track followers, like many others associated with sport, are very superstitious, and one of their beliefs is that accidents come in threes. And this time the hunch worked out. After running for fifty-one days without the loss of a thoroughbred, through accidents, three are taken in the space of twenty-four hours—Chictoney, Trombone and My Prospero. And the irony of it all is that the Longacres meet has only one more week to run.

* * *

Before the staging of the rich Longacres classic it was known as the $10,000 mile, but now it will long be remembered as the "black mile." One single race that took from the tracks forever two of the finest bits of horseflesh on the North American continent, Chictoney and Trombone. And in addition Acey Smith's local Goldstream, champion of the handicap division at the Washington plant, incurred injuries that may force the son of Simony out of competition for some time. Goldstream's bad effort, being able to defeat but one horse, the crumbling Chictoney, thus is explained. Smith's champion was severely cut about the legs and from his movements since it is believed he bowed a tendon.

* * *

Thus the horse race that catapulted the Longacres track into the turf spotlight in recent weeks brought tragedy and disappointment to two sportsmen, Don Grant, owner of Trombone, and H. H. Crowell, owner of Chictoney. Trombone and Chictoney both were crack horses with the best of them when at the height of their form and competition. In 1934 Trombone, a handsome six-year-old by St. James and Overture, that formerly raced for the famous combination of Abe Bartlestein, Chicago, and Harry Unna, California, won four major races at Winnipeg, Dallas and Longacres. In 1934 Trombone won fifteen races in thirty-four starts, obtained parts of others and earned $18,850 for his owners. Chictoney ran but few times since he started as a two-year-old at Tanforan, winning his first effort as far as horses can win. In all Chictoney went postward twenty-five times, earning something like $5,000 in purses.

As athletes assemble from all parts of the province intent on British Columbia track and field laurels at the Civic Employees Federation sports to-morrow, the glitter of outstanding talent gathered for the meet will attract the public attention. But some of the orchids at least go to those who have sponsored the event.

* * *

Starting originally with the idea of throwing in four or five events open to all amateur runners, the federation sports have finally claimed the stellar role in this year's track and field drama, as far as the province is concerned. To make it the big meet it will be, scores of men have been working, without hope of thanks, arranging the details necessary for the event.

* * *

A stalwart prize committee has dared the prospects of lengthy depression discussions with Victoria's merchants to collect awards for the winners. They have been successful to an astonishing extent, thanks to the liberal hands of the men they have touched.

* * *

Secretarial work has gone on apace. Tommy Harris is a typical example of the men who have been devoting their spare time to the meet. With nothing to gain personally, Tommy has been banging a typewriter nights to draw up the programme, and when his holidays came around, he merely shifted from a City Hall ledger to a sports card.

"Greater love hath no man than this"—when a boy gives up his vacation for a sports meet.

BOXING

New York—Lou Salica, 117¼, Brooklyn, outpointed Sixto Escobar, 117¼, Puerto Rico (fifteen), gained N.B.A. and New York recognition as world flyweight champion.

Pittsburgh—Al Gainer, 172, New Haven, Conn., outpointed Billy Ketchell, 169, Philadelphia (ten).

Chicago—Babe Marino, 152½, San Francisco, outpointed Billy Celebron, 147, Rockford, Ill. (ten).

Miami Beach, Fla.—Frankie Hughes, 146½, Clinton, Ind., and Rufus Miles, 146½, Charlotte, N.C., drew (eight).

Cunningham, Dale And Joe Addison Favored Locally

Howie McPhee, Vancouver, and Allan Poole, Kelowna, Standouts For Sprints

KEEN BATTLES ARE ASSURED

As track and field stars of the province, including boys of national rating, tapered off their training for to-morrow's British Columbia championship meet at Macdonald Park, Victoria's track world looked to a trio of Y.M.C.A. aces to nick at least three of the titles at stake.

On the powerful limbs of Joe Addison, well-tried sprinter, and on the long-striding legs of the veteran Chuck Cunningham and his young rangy teammate, Bill Dale, rested the city's main hopes for laurels.

A classy field of invaders threatened to shut Victoria out of the sprints, while, with the exception of Ted Butterworth, local chances in the field events were not regarded as very bright. However, track followers considered the strength of the Capital City in those events sufficient to extend the strong mainland challengers as they battled for the laurels.

HUGE CROWD EXPECTED

Given a continuance of to-day's weather, those in charge of the sports, which are sponsored by the Civic Employees Federation, anticipated an attendance superior to any a track meet has drawn in the last decade. No charge will be made at the gate.

Rail birds looked for some of the keenest sprints that have ever been staged here, but figured Howie McPhee, Vancouver, and Allan Poole, Kelowna, as the pick of the field in that department. The boys will probably start the hundred with McPhee slightly favored over the rangy speedster from the interior. In the two-twenty the betting will probably be reversed on the pair.

Right in the fight will be Stan Barrett, Vancouver, and Paul Rowe, Victoria Y.

VICTORIA PROSPECTS

In the quarter-mile duel, between Joe Addison and Mush Limon, Vancouver, a lot was expected to depend on the ability of either boy to get the rail on the first stretch. Each of the two boasts a victory over the other in two major meets this year. Addison will be favored on the local track, but will have to show just about all he's got to beat out the Vancouver challenger.

Joe will also be favored for the hurdles against a strong contending field including Howie McPhee and Milt Parsons of Vancouver.

Bill Dale and Chuck Cunningham are figured stand-outs in the half mile, with Vance McComber, Vancouver Amateur Athletic Club and J. W. Redhead, Powell River, as possible challengers.

In the mile, Dale and Cunningham will have strong opposition from Tom Porter, Chemainus, and possibly Terry Todd, former Brentwood College boy and Vance McComber, Vancouver.

RELAY HOPES

Victoria also has hopes of taking the 880-yard relay race from the Vancouver Amateur Athletic Club, but the showing of the local team will depend very largely on the ability of Arnie Philipsen to beat Bob Dixon, British Empire discus champion. Paul Rowe, Joe Addison and Owen Bentley will complete the local team, while the Vancouver boys running with Dixon will be Vance McComber, Stan Barrett and Howie McPhee.

Ted Butterworth is conceded a chance in the broad jump and may finish in the money in the throws.

However the meet goes, it will produce some of the keenest battles that have been waged in local track and field circles for years.

CLOSED EVENTS

Preceding the championship events civic employees will meet in closed races starting at 1.30 o'clock. Their part of the programme is scheduled to continue for a little over an hour, when the major contests will be introduced following a parade of athletes.

PROGRAMME

The complete programme, with entries and heats, as well as the approximate starting times for each event, follows:

1.30 p.m.—75 yards handicap, boys eight and under; Herbert Bishop, Bill Richards, Terry McConnell.

1.38 p.m.—75 yards handicap, girls eight and under, Joan Crowther Barbara Bishop.

Cantonwine Treats Katan Real Rough

London, Ont., Aug. 27.—Howard "Hangman" Cantonwine lived up to his reputation as a bad man of the ring and smashed out a victory over John Katan, Winnipeg grappler, in the twenty-fourth minute of the main bout on yesterday evening's winter garden card.

In fact the westerner was not quite able to stand up to it. The Portland, Ore., smasher laid him out on the canvas. Cantonwine got some jeers from the crowd, protesting the blow was a foul, but the referee ruled it was in order. The Oregonian had hit Katan in the jaw.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

Elagabalus, profligate emperor of Rome, knew that his wild rule could end in only one way—sudden death. It was his choice that he kill himself when the time seemed ripe—and, in his vanity, he set about to make his death the most expensive that the empire had ever seen.

To this end he had erected a tall tower, studded with gems and decorated inside with costly paintings. From this tower he could jump to his death. Poisons were also prepared for him, flavored with rare perfumes and spices—these he could swallow in case he decided to die by poison.

He had ropes of silver and gold spun in case he wanted to hang himself, and a golden sword was forged to use if he chose to die by the sword. The stage was set for a glorious suicide—and yet he failed. For he delayed too long, and his own soldiers assassinated him and threw his body into a sewer.

Elagabalus was the most costly emperor that Rome ever knew. When he went about the city in his chariot, gold dust was scattered on the streets ahead of him. His banquets were expensive beyond description. He devised showers of flowers for his guests, some of these showers so heavy that diners were smothered to death beneath them.

The overland boat in the drawing above pulls itself along on land by means of a cable which is attached ahead of the boat at points along the way. The boat's engines wind the cable on a drum, in this way dragging the craft from point to point.

SONS CAPTURE TWO STRAIGHT

Defeat Eagles 5 to 4 in Second Game of Senior Baseball Play-off

Sons of Canada, crack Senior Baseball League nine, yesterday evening chalked up their second successive victory over the Eagles, when they scored a 5 to 4 win in the second of the five-game play-off series for the league championship at the Athletic Park.

Sons of Canada gained a two-run lead in the first two innings, a margin they never relinquished. Each club garnered a pair of runs in the third frame and the Sons gained a tally in the fourth stanza to complete their scoring.

The fifth and final inning saw the Eagles make a game attempt to win, but their rally fell one run short.

The third fixture of the series will take place to-morrow evening at the Athletic Park. A win for the Sons of Canada will mean the end of the series and give them the title, but a win for the Eagles will prolong it.

Score by innings:

Eagles	0 0 2 0 2—4
Sons of Canada	1 1 2 1 x—5

Batteries—Proudlove and Woodford; Dick and Kuwabara. Umpire, Leo Holden.

A rally in the seventh inning by Esquimalt gave them their second run.

Owner Ruled Off Longacres Track

Seattle, Aug. 27. — Roy W. Selden, San Francisco owner and trainer of race horses, was ruled off the Longacres track under a decision made public yesterday by William A. Quigley, presiding steward.

Quigley said Selden was ruled off the track and his horses suspended because, on August 18, veterinarians of the Washington State Racing Association said saliva examinations showed a stimulant had been used on one of Selden's horses, Royal Chef.

The test, Quigley said, was made immediately after Royal Chef won the fifth race, Sourdough Graded Handicap of one mile, by half a length.

CHAMP PICKS BAER TO WIN

Jimmy Braddock Expects Maxie to Halt Sensational March of Joe Louis

Houston, Texas, Aug. 27.—James J. Braddock, heavyweight champion of the world, believes Max Baer will stop the march of Joe Louis when the sluggers clash at Yankee Stadium September 24.

Braddock, here to box a three-round exhibition and referee the main bout on a boxing card to-night, says Baer is the first scrapper matched with Louis, who can take it.

"Carnera was quaking in his shoetops when he fought the negro," said Braddock, "but it will be different with Baer. I saw Louis slaughter Carnera, and I still believe Bayer can take everything the negro offers without folding."

Braddock rates Baer as a harder puncher than Louis.

"I will meet the winner of the Baer-Louis fight, probably next summer," said Braddock. "If it is Louis, which I doubt, I think I can outbox him. If it is Baer, well, I whipped Maxie once."

Tommy Armour Will Not Defend

Montreal, Aug. 27.—Tommy Armour, Detroit, will not defend his Canadian open golf title this week at Summerlea, it was announced yesterday by Secretary B. L. Anderson of the Royal Canadian Golf Association.

A shoulder injury will prevent his attendance. Armour has won the title three times, defeating an international field last Summer at Missisaugua, Toronto.

Canada's leading amateurs, Sandy Somerville, London, Ont., and Bud Donovan, Winnipeg, were entrants in the open classic that starts Thursday. Gordon B. Taylor, Montreal, former Canadian amateur titleholder, also is entered.

MT. STEPHEN CARD IS SET

Seven Boxing and Wrestling Bouts Will Be Offered Friday Evening

Seven fine bouts, consisting of four wrestling and three boxing matches will form the mixed card of the Mount Stephen Athletic Club, to be staged in their outdoor arena on Friday evening, on Mount Stephen Avenue. The curtain-raiser will be at 8 o'clock.

Louie Newman and Ed Dunc, 175-pound youngsters, will meet in the feature wrestling attraction and are scheduled to go five four-minute rounds. Former bouts between these two have always resulted in plenty of action.

The semi-windup wrestling bout will bring together Al Garnet and Legs Hay at 130 pounds. They will go four four-minute rounds.

Young Doc Sarpolis and Young Gus Sonnenberg, popular ninety-pound wrestlers, will be on hand and they are scheduled to battle four three-minute rounds. Another wrestling match which is reported to be a grudge match will be announced from the ring.

Three boxing bouts will complete the card. George Patterson and Jack Paterson, brother boxers, will tangle in the feature match. The eighty-pound class will bring together Ken Earl and George Wilson, while the seventy-five-pound class will bring together Dickie Reid and George Gauthier.

With such a fine bunch of wrestlers and boxers taking part on the programme it is expected to be one of the best of the season.

FRED PERRY WILL DEFEND

Entered in U.S. Tennis Championship at Forest Hills Starting Thursday

New York, Aug. 27. — A star-studded field of 162 players, including six Canadians, was drawn yesterday for the men's and women's United States singles tennis championships starting Thursday at Forest Hills.

Topping the invading seeded players are Fred Perry, British ace, who will defend his crown, and Kay Stammers, who has conquered both Helen Jacobs and Helen Wills Moody overseas. The domestic lists are headed by Wilmer Allison, Davis Cup veteran, and Miss Jacobs.

From the Dominion come three Montreal men and three women. Bobby Murray gets a first-round bye in the upper half of the men's division. Laird Watt meets Lieut. R. M. Watt, Jamaica, N.Y., while in the bottom half Henri P. Emard drew a tough opening assignment of Frank X. Shields, Hollywood.

The feminine net-wielders from north of the border are Jean Burritt, Toronto and Diana Pope, London, Ont., and Effie Billing, Montreal. Miss Pope starts against none other than Phyllis Mudford-King, of the British Wightman Cup forces. Miss Burritt meets Patricia Henry, Los Angeles, and Miss Billing's first-round encounter is with Gracyn Wheeler, California.

In recognition of his showing in the Wimbledon and Davis Cup events, red-headed Donald Budge, Oakland, Cal., was seeded a notch below Allison, followed in order by Shields and Sidney B. Wood, New York.

Manager Bill Terry Reads Riot Act To New York Giants

Tells Boys They Are Playing For Jobs Not Pennant

Club Must Snap Out of Slump That Has Cost Them National League Lead

LOST YESTERDAY TO PITTSBURGH

The mailed fist had been substituted for the kid glove in the New York Giants' camp to-day.

Bill Terry sat down to consider the situation after the St. Louis Cards had wrestled the lead from the New Yorkers. He remembered his own prophecies of May, that the Giants would wind up about twenty games ahead of the second-place club, and he began to wonder if the turbulence of the St. Louis bad boys hadn't something to do with their baseball success.

And in resolution he strode into the clubhouse to lay down the law.

"If I'm going to lose I can lose with nine men as well as twenty-three. From now on the issue isn't the pennant. It's your jobs."

The boys apparently understood, but they went out yesterday and dropped another to Pittsburgh Pirates 10 to 2. It was the Giants' opportunity to slip back into the favored niche too, for the Cards were defeated at Philadelphia 4 to 3.

HOME-RUN WINS

Orville Jorgens, who was knocked out of the box by Cincinnati Reds Sunday came back to hold the Cards to nine scattered hits. The Reds defeated Brooklyn Dodgers 3 to 2 in the first of a four-game series, Babe Herman's ninth inning homer providing the winning margin.

The New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox played five and a half hours to no avail as far as their league positions were concerned. Chicago took the first game 9 to 8 but the McCarthymen came back to cop the nightcap 7 to 5.

Philadelphia Athletics broke even with the league-leading Detroit Tigers, the champions taking the first game 13 to 7 and Philadelphia the second 3 to 2. Tommy Bridges allowed but four hits in the second game, but errors by Owen and Rogell in the ninth let in two Philadelphia runs after Jimmy Foxx had hit his twenty-eighth homer of the season. Foxx had clouted his twenty-seventh in the opening stanza of the first game.

It was Hal Trosky's twenty-second home run of the season that enabled Cleveland Indians to defeat the Boston Red Sox 4 to 3.

Defeat Arnold and Quigley in Thirteen Innings in Vancouver Baseball

Vancouver, Aug. 27.—Ralph Stong, hard-hitting right fielder for the Athletics, yesterday evening drove his team into a game margin in the first of the best of five semi-final series of the Senior Baseball League, with a 3 to 1 victory over Arnold and Quigley in thirteen innings.

After hitting for the circuit with the bases empty in the first half of the ninth to tie the score, Stong rapped out a double in the first of the thirteenth and scored on a squeeze play. Cole counted the other Athletic run on Isekite's double later in the inning.

ADANACS DEFEAT SALMONBELLIES

New Westminster, Aug. 27.—New Westminster Adanacs defeated their intracity rivals, Salmonbellies, 24 to 19, in a box lacrosse contest here yesterday evening. The result had no effect on the league standings, as both Royal City teams failed to catch a berth in the playoffs.

Salmonbellies held a 4 to 3 lead at the end of the first quarter, but Adanacs came from behind to take an 11 to 8 advantage at half time and eight goals in the third quarter, twice as many as their opponents were able to net, put them well up in the scoring.

New York—Steve Halaiko, 139½, Buffalo, N.Y., and Al Casimini, 135¾, New York, drew (ten).

—Newark, N.J.—Young Terry, 157, Trenton, N.J., outpointed Jack Ennis, 157½, Asbury Park, N.J. (ten).

Favor Vaughan And Greenberg

Pittsburgh and Detroit Stars Figured to Win Baseball Player Awards

New York, Aug. 27.—The twin batting heroes of the major league races, Arky Vaughan, Pittsburgh, shortstop, and big Hank Greenberg, first sacker of the Detroit Tigers, are headed for honors as the most valuable players of the 1936 season, baseball writers believe.

The final month of campaigning may cause some switches in judgment, but the powerhouse clouting of Greenberg, who is leading both leagues in home runs and runs batted in, has gained him a sweeping endorsement so far.

An Associated Press poll of the big league experts showed thirty of forty-six experts naming the Tiger thumper as the No. 1 American Leaguer of the year. His closest rival, Pitcher Wes Ferrell of the Boston Red Sox, collected ten votes.

Opinion is more divided in the National League. The Pirate star gathered rixteen votes, six more than his nearest rival, Joe Medwick, the cleanup clouter of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals.

JEAN BAUER IS GOLF MEDALIST

Providence Miss Leads Field in U.S. Women's Tournament With 79

Minneapolis, Aug. 27. — Jean Bauer, Providence, R.I., who never before qualified for the big show, yesterday beat them all to win the medal of the thirty-ninth national women's golf championship with a 79, three shots higher than the tournament record set by Enid Wilson, England, two years ago.

A final sectional tournament play but a failure in the national qualifying rounds at Salem and Whitemarsh in 1934, the pretty twenty-four-year-old New England miss regarded her entry this year as a "lark" until she discovered she was one under par for the first five holes She grew dead serious thereafter and did not do so well, but succeeded in slipping in behind Charlotte Glutting, West Orange, N.J., to beat her out by one shot for the medal.

Mrs. Sylvia Annenberg, New York the former Mrs. Leo. Federman, was third with an 81.

CONTENDERS IN RICH TORONTO SWIM TO-DAY

The distance having been shortened to five miles, speed rather than staying powers is expected to be the deciding factor in the world championship swimming race in Lake Ontario to-day in front of the Canadian National Exhibition grounds. The above layout shows some of the men who figure to lift the prize money. No. 1 is Alf Sully, Toronto, who has been a contender in previous years but never finished among the leaders. No. 2, Gianni Gambi, Italy, who finished second in the long race of 1932 and won the one-mile race at Toronto a few weeks ago. No. 3, Jack May, Honolulu, one of the favorites in view of the likelihood of warm water. No. 4, Polly Parrott, Victoria six-day bicycle rider, who is regarded somewhat of a dark horse for the event. No. 5, Sam Shields, Louisville, Ky., who likes warm water and led the big swim three years ago until forced out by the cold. No. 6, Bill Nolan, Chelsea, Mass., who finished second in the recent nine-mile swim at Sarnia.

Polly Parrott In Rich Swim To-day

Victoria's Well-known Six-day Bicycle Rider Seeks Prize Money and Glory in C.N.E. Five-mile Event; Gambi, Pritchard Brothers and Blagden Entered

Toronto, Aug. 27.—Can Polly Parrott, the six-day bike rider from Victoria, B.C., make his powerful legs and arms travel through Lake Ontario's waters with sufficient force to win the Canadian National Exhibition marathon swim? That's the question they asked to-day when it was learned the veteran of the wooden saucer had entered in the event that carries with it $2,500 in prize money and the title of world champion professional swimmer.

It's a question that replaced the time-honored "what will Young do?" asked respecting George Young, who crashed into the limelight in 1928 with a victory in the Catalina Island swim. He will be absent this year, along with husky Marvin Nelson from Fort Dodge, Iowa. They're going to have a grudge swim some time next week for first prize of $2,000, and settle an oft-argued question of supremacy.

Most of the old familiar faces will be on hand, however, at the lake front off exhibition park at 5 o'clock, when more than 100 aspirants for prizes and fame take the plunge.

Predictions were early to-day the water would be the warmest on record when such stars as Gianni Gambi, Ravenna, Italy, Frank and Stanley Pritchard, Buffalo, Lawyer George Blagden, Memphis, Tenn., Bill Goll and Clarence Ross, New York, start the gruelling quest of fortune.

A flock of dark horses will take to the water with the old-timers in the swim game. Critics fancy "Cy" Nelson, Wilmett, Ill. He has been churning up the water of late in convincing manner. Hal Malyneux, eighteen-year-old mine hand from Beattie Township in northern Ontario, is another newcomer.

SPEED CAR NEW DESIGN

Many Innovations on Capt. George Eyston's Machine For Runs at Utah Plains

London, Aug. 27.—Sir Malcolm Campbell's famous record-breaking Bluebird will have a rival for public interest when it arrives in America late in August for another attempt at the mystic 300-mile-an-hour mark on Utah's great salt plains.

Traveling on the same liner with the famous Campbell-Bluebird combination is another noted British speed merchant, Capt. George Eyston, and a new super-racer that in design is almost as startling as was Bluebird on its first public appearance.

In the new 200-mile-an-hour creation Capt. Eyston intends to smash practically every record that his distinguished countryman doesn't want, from twenty miles to twenty-four hours. He anticipated little difficulty in bettering all the twenty-one records recently set on the same Utah course by another Briton, John Cobb.

Eyston's machine, twenty-three feet in length and tapering down to a wind aperture in front that looks like a shark's mouth, bristles with novel points. It has a twelve-cylinder aviation power unit and no sign of a clutch. A four-speed, self-changing gear box takes its place.

It is the first big machie of the type to have front-wheel drive. Further, each wheel is independent of the other. Fuel is carried in two twenty-three-gallon tanks and pumped to the carburetors by a mechalcal engine device.

Adoption of front-wheel drive has greatly simplified the layout of the cockpit, since there is no mechanism in it with the driver.

The body, held on a light alloy framework, is shaped as half a true streamline section, the underside, naturally, being flat. Extensions at each side cover the gas tanks and partly enclose the wheels. Inside the tail is a compartment for spare tires and tools, in accordance with the international rules for distance runs.

The lighting system for the long night runs is novel, two headlights being carried close together inside the nose of the car and throwing their beams through portholes in the streamlined cover.

Captain Eyston and Albert Denly, who will "spell" him at the wheel, have evolved a scheme which they believe will save much time in refuelling the giant. They plan to instal a big reservoir on a tower with two hoses, one for each tank.

Since the car weighs nearly two tons, special pads are fitted for two huge compound jacks which will hoist both front and both rear wheels off the ground in one movement for tire changes.

Salica Awarded Unpopular Call

Takes Decision From Sixto Escobar Over Fifteen Rounds at New York to Win Recognition as Bantamweight Champ; Fans Hoot Verdict

New York, Aug. 27.—Lou Salica, Olympic flyweight finalist in 1932, became the bantamweight champion of most parts of the world yesterday evening by winning a savage though unpopular decision over Sixto Escobar, Porto Rico in a fifteen-round duel before a capacity crowd here yesterday evening.

There were no knockdowns, but for the entire fifteen rounds the black-haired pained-looking Italian youngster from Brooklyn clawed at the brown-skinned Escobar, winner of a recent elimination tournament in Montreal. Salica had the best of the lang range battling, the Porto Rican the best in the frequent gruelling, head-to-head exchanges in close.

At the end, the crowd of 5,949, paying $7,837 to see the most successful small-club duel in several season, howled and hooted in derision, and the boxing commission, headed by John J. Phelan, left the ringside in confusion, promising to discuss the matter officially and announce the individual verdicts of the two judges and the referee, Arthur Donovan, tomorrow.

ESCOBAR FAVORED

On the Associated Press scorecard, Escobar, a brown buzzsaw in close, by far the stiffer right hand puncher, won eight rounds. Salica five, with two even. Many of the ringside critics gave Escobar ten rounds, Salica only five.

Each weighed 117¼ pounds, and, closely matched, sailed at each other from the opening gong.

Fighting a smart, heady, counter-punching battle, shaking Salica almost every round with smart right samshes to the head, Escobar clearly won the second, fourth, fift, sixth, and seventh rounds, before he started to tire. He rocked Salica with right smashes in the fourth and fifth and hurt him badly with both hands about the body.

Salica, nosing out the extra points in the first, eighth and ninth, went into the tenth pretty well beaten. He rallied there, carried the fight to the Porto Rican all the rest of the way, and in the final round had Sixto tired and wobbling under a courageous two-fisted attack.

Added to the sanction of the National Boxing Association, representing most of the states and Canada, was the sanction of the New York Athletic Commission for the title claims of the two busy warriors, who left the ring unmarked despite the fierceness of the going.

Panama Al Brown, formerly recognized as bantamweight champion, has been fighting in Europe so long the local commissions have forgotten all about him.

VAN RYN AND ALLISON WIN

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 27.—The thousands of unofficial United States Davis Cup selections committeemen, who had decided Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn were a bit too old for international play, were pulled up short yesterday when these veterans gained their second national doubles championship by defeating the youngsters generally favored as their successors.

For the second time since the Davis Cup disaster before England's brigade, Allison and Van Ryn engaged their young teammates from California, Don Budge and Gene Mako, and for the second time the oldsters gained a five-set victory by scores of 6-4, 6-2, 3-6, 2-6, 6-1. The internationalists blasted away at each other for almost two hours.

Mrs. Sarah Fabyan, Brookline, combined with Enrique Maier, Spain, for a 6-3, 3-6, 6-4 mixed doubles victory over Kay Stammers, England, and Roderick Menzel, powerful Czechoslovakian.

Y.M.C.A. to Hold Annual Campaign Starting Tuesday, October 15

The annual membership campaign of the Y.M.C.A. will begin on October 15. It was decided at a meeting of the membership committee yesterday evening. The date is one week later than is customary on account of the federal elections.

A short preliminary supper meeting for officers in the campaign will be held at the "Y" on the evening of Friday, October 11. Founders' Day will be observed on Tuesday, October 15, at a banquet in connection with the opening of the drive.

The campaign will be organized in the customary manner, with four divisions headed by majors and divided into teams led by captains.

E. G. Rowebottom, chairman of the membership committee, was appointed chairman of the campaign.

Arrangements for the "Y" booth at the Provincial Exhibition at the Willows at the beginning of next month were also discussed. It was decided to make use of the existing material, which has remained in position at the Industrial Building since last year's fair.

The "Y" will co-operate with the Victorian Order of Nurses in the provision of a first-aid post at the booth. The Y.W.C.A. has been invited to make use of the facilities of the booth for the Wednesday afternoon of the fair.

Cups and trophies won by Y.M.C.A. teams and members will be on display at the stall, and literature concerning all the activities of the association will be distributed.

COOL BREEZE BREAKS HEAT

Temperature Second Highest in Summer; Drops 14 Degrees in Two Hours

A cool breeze off the sea brought a little relief to shoppers and businessmen who were sweltering in heat of well over 90 degrees in down-town Victoria to-day.

The temperature reached a maximum of 86 degrees on Gonzales Hill at the lunch hour, according to F. Napier Denison, director of the Dominion Meterological Observatory. This was the highest temperature for the month, but a breeze from the southeast sprang up, and the thermometer quickly dropped until it reached 72 degrees at 2 o'clock.

To-day's maximum temperature was only exceeded by one day this summer—July 13—when the mercury rose to 90 degrees on Gonzales Hill.

ROAD BUILDER IS CRITICAL

Norman Box, British Highway Engineer, Could Show B.C. the Trick

Norman Box of Manchester, Eng., one of Britain's foremost road engineers, who years ago built the famous Tourist Trophy course in the Isle of Man, where the swiftest motor races of the world take place, in an interview at the Empress Hotel to-day, made several pungent remarks anent the roads of British Columbia.

With bubbling humor, an inimitable Lancashire drawl and a twinkle in his blue eyes he remarked on the condition of his poor back after a trip to Mission and continued by saying that were he a younger man, "by gum" he would come out and show us the trick. "You've got all the stone in the world right here for the job; you've only got to brush it on," he said.

This is Mr. Box's second visit to Canada. On his previous trip seven years ago he said he talked with Sir Edward Beatty, president of the C.P.R. on this question of roads remarking at this time, in his opinion, good highways were of the utmost importance to railway development for "do not tributaries feed the rivers?"

Mr. Box and his family are thoroughly enjoying their visit to Canada where they are spending several days at each scenic highspot and renewing many friendships with Lancashire folk.

In fact at Winnipeg, their party of five swelled to fifteen and in Victoria Mr. and Mrs. James Tarbuck with Jmes Tarbuck, former Liverpudlians now residents of Vancouver were also of the party.

Mr. and Mrs. Box's two youngest daugaters, Kathleen, aged ten, and Margaret, sixteen, are fine swimmers. Miss Eulene, eldest of the three sisters, is a partner in her father's firm, the Box Grouting and Spraying Company, road contractors, of Manchester, Eng.

Mr. Box is interested in the Fen reclamation scheme in Norfolk County, where tulips are now being grown on an intensive scale.

INCREASE IN TRANSIENTS

July Totals Show More Are Arriving in British Columbia

The problem of transient unemployed is more acute in British Columbia this year than it was last year it is shown by figures released by the relief branch of the Department of Labor to-day.

The July totals compiled to-day provided a disturbing element to the department which has frequently made representations to Ottawa that B.C's problem of caring for unemployed is made more acute by reason of the number who come from other provinces to become a charge on B.C.

The figures show that the number of transients in municipalities has increased in the twelve months from 5,487 to 7,289. In July last year there were 260 transients in provincial territory. Last July the figure was 1,289.

Prospects of a further increase in the number of transients face the government.

The normal exodus of men from British Columbia to other parts of Canada has been halted by the action of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police arresting men at the Alberta boundary as they try to make their way east by riding the rods.

An annual influx of men from the east to British Columbia in the early part of September has been noted for a number of years past and is anticipated again this year.

A meeting of the Ward Three Saanich Ratepayers' Association will be held to-night at 8 o'clock in the Scout Hall at Cadboro Bay, when the transportation question for the district will be discussed.

OLD TRAVELER VISITS CITY

C. E. Cooper, Veteran of Sixty Years on Road, Still Selling on Island

Three score years and one on the road and still selling!

That is the thumbnail sketch of G. E. Cooper, eighty-five-year-old commercial traveler, who left the Dominion Hotel this morning for up-Island centres.

As a young fellow this octogenarian traveled out of St. Catherine's, Ont., selling axes, saws and other hardware. He is now operating out of Vancouver selling brooms.

Mr. Cooper, still alert in spite of the passage of time, looks back on the old days when he moved from one place to another in rigs, stages and the old livery systems.

He has covered most of the Dominion by one method or another and has watched Canada develop as he worked.

"It was pretty rough traveling in the old days. But I made as much in a day than as I do in a month now," the old-timer reported.

Mr. Cooper visits Victoria every year on his rounds and is looking forward to a few more trips to the city before he makes his final sale.

Many Mourn Late Mrs. R. Mitchell

The funeral of Mrs. Rebecca Mitchell, who passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Stanley Patrick, in Vancouver, last Saturday, took place here yesterday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

Relatives and an unusually large gathering of friends attended the impressive service conducted by Rev. C. G. MacKenzie. The congregational hymns sung were "Jesus, Lover Of My Soul" and "Abide With Me." Mrs. S. M. Morton sang the solo "The Lord Is My Shepherd."

The many beautiful flowers bore testimony to the esteem in which Mrs. Mitchell was held by a wide circle of friends.

The pallbearers were: Walter Hembroff, Brooke Stephenson, W. N. Mitchell, Jack MacKay, Harold Simpson and Stanley Patrick.

The remains were laid to rest in the family plot at Royal Oak Burial Park.

The late Mrs. Mitchell, who resided in Victoria for twenty-seven years, was the widow of Wesley N. Mitchell, and is survived by one son, Ralph Mitchell, of Port Alberni; five daughters, Mrs. J. MacMillan Muir, of Portland; Mrs. Brooke Stephenson and Mrs. Jack MacKay of Victoria; Mrs. Stanley Patrick of Vancouver, and Mrs. Harold Simpson of Texada Island; one brother, William May of Moose Jaw; two sisters, Mrs. W. M. Mitchell of Victoria and one in Ontario.

The funeral of the late Frederick Crook, who passed away last Thursday, took place yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Relatives and many friends attended the services conducted by Rev. Canon H. W. G. Stocken. The casket was surrounded by beautiful flowers. The hymns sung were "Peace, Perfect Peace" and "Abide With Me."

The pallbearers were: Messrs. Robert Burns, Harold Purdy, Lewis Wheeldon and J. Hague. The remains were laid to rest in Royal Oak Burial Park.

PIONEER HAD VARIED LIFE

Late Hugh Macdonald, 81, Was Seafarer and Prospector in Early Days

THE LATE HUGH MACDONALD

One of Victoria's colorful pioneer characters, Hugh Macdonald of "Keppoch Cottage," 1430 Edgeware Road, passed away yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. He was in his eighty-first year.

The late Mr. Macdonald was born at Saint John, New Brunswick, January 29, 1854, the son of Pipe-Major John Macdonald of the Black Watch Battalion. In his early days he followed the business of sail-making, being familiar with the old sailing ships that visited the ports of his native province.

Over half a century ago the west called to Mr. Macdonald, and he came to British Columbia. He had a varied career on this coast. For many years he was at sea, and later did a great deal of prospecting in the hills of Vancouver Island and the mainland. At one time he was employed by the government on trail blazing in the northern parts of British Columbia. During the Great War he served with the naval forces on the Coast.

Despite his advancing age, Mr. Macdonald went to the Queen Charlotte Islands some years ago and took a position at one of the stations operated by the Consolidated Whaling Corporation. He intended to go north again this spring, but ill-health interferred with his plans.

The Burns Club of Victoria has lost one of its most enthusiastic members in the death of Mr. Macdonald. He was always interested in its activities, and was known as an ardent patron of Highland music. He leaves many friends, by whom he was highly respected. He had no relatives.

The funeral has been arranged for Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the McCall Brothers' Funeral Home. Interment will be in Colwood Burial Park.

ADDITIONS TO B.C. MUSEUM

Valuable Additions to Collections Acknowledged By Director

Acknowledgement of several valuable aditions to the collection of the Provincial Museum is made by Francis Kermode, director, in his annual report issued to-day.

Mr. Kermode mentions that the collection has been increased by a quantity of archaeological material from many localities throughout the province. The material was presented by W. B. Anderson, who for many years was inspector of Indian orchards for the Dominion government. It was hailed as a valuable acquisition to the archaeological section of the museum.

A number of fine Salish tribe Indian baskets which are not now easy to secure have been added to the Indian section. Miss M. Woolridge also presented some fine specimens of Indian basketry. S. J. Darcus, a keen ornithologist is responsible for three very valuable additions to the ological collection.

A. Nichols and E. H. Lohbrunner visited Alice Arm in search of botanical specimens. As very little botanical work has been done in that region the large number of specimens they secured for the museum herbarium were cordially appreciated.

Reference is made to the success of the lecture series for children at the museum made possible through the generosity of the Carnegie Corporation. It is hoped to continue these lectures next winter and also to have small traveling exhibits of natural history subjects which could be sent to schools in the outlying districts.

The report shows that during the year 44,697 visitors saw over the museum.

SUCCESS IN INSURANCE

Sales Talks Hold Attention of California-Western States Life Delegates

Presentation in the form of an insurance sales interview, the general theme "What is your idea of success," held the attention of the El Capitan Club delegates to the California-Western States Life Insurance Company's convention in the lower lounge of the Empress Hotel this morning.

Ideas advanced were under the heading of "What to say—presenting a plan to the prospect," "Success guaranteed Approach," and "Fundamentals of Success."

Erle T. Gilbert presided. Discussions were led by Ray P. Cox, general chairman, and El Capitans participating in the discussion were LeRoy B. Pyper, club president, August F. Kapinos, Theodore Barth, Albert C. Tarabini, Bert J. Schaefer, M. G. Phillips and George W. Coe.

The remarkable increase in the assets of life insurance in the United States was stressed at yesterday afternoon's meeting by Ray P. Cox, vice-president and manager of agencies, who said that from 1907, when it represented $3,000,000,000, the investment approached $22,000,000,000, in 1934.

Life insurance, with only about 3 per cent of failures against it, was the best investment that could be selected to-day, Mr. Cox asserted. It was the best investment, he said, because it insured 100 per cent at maturity. It also insured the collateral value if the insured desired to borrow against it and allowed 6 per cent.

OFFICERS INSTALLED

Officers of the El Capitan Club were installed at the evening session yesterday, the new club president, LeRoy B. Pyper, of Tucson, Arizona, introducing the other officers as follows: G. Guy Young, Alturas, Cal., first vice-president; Paul C. Lyon, Salt Lake City, Utah, third vice-president; Grant Taggart, Cowley, Wyoming; J. Vivian Hart, Sacramento, Cal.; Lahroy C. White, Amarillo, Texas; Harold Buck, San Francisco, and Ernesto Vedovi, San Francisco, executive committee.

Mr. Pyper received the ebony cane of office.

After luncheon, to-day the afternoon was given over to sightseeing and golfing. Some took advantage of the scenic trips over the Malahat and to the Butchart's Gardens. Others entered the qualifying round of the El Capitan golf tournament. The golf finals will be played over the Oak Bay course to-morrow afternoon. A fishing expedition is also slated for to-morrow following the business session. An informal dance is planned for this evening at the hotel.

NEW BUSINESS

The business theme to-morrow morning will be "Participating insurance, an explanation of the three new policy contracts," A. H. Hakenson presiding.

At 7.30 o'clock to-morrow night, President O. J. Lacy will preside over a farewell dinner party in the Crystal ballroom.

The concluding business session will be held Thursday morning, the topic being "Sales Presentations."

MRS. P. L. MOORE PASSES AT HOME

Sullivan of this city; one son, Thomas Leo, at home; three grandchildren, and three sisters, Mrs. R. Birch of Victoria, and two in England.

The funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon at 1.45 o'clock, from McCall Bros.' Funeral Home. Interment will be in Colwood Burial Park.

DEATH REMOVES MRS. A. B. WARD

There passed away this morning at the Jubilee Hospital, Mrs. Ella Florence Ward, 1637 Hollywood Crescent. She was sixty years of age. Born in Nova Scotia, the late Mrs. Ward resided for many years in Kamloops, previous to coming to this city seven years ago. She leaves in sorrow her husband, A. B. Ward, at the family residence, Hollywood Crescent, and one brother Ernest L. Tays of New Westminster.

The remains are resting at the S. J. Curry and Son Funeral Home and will be forwarded Thursday afternoon to Kamloops for interment on Saturday.

John Andrew Mair, who farmed for many years in Manitoba, passed away this morning at his home, 1441 St Patrick Street, in his eighty-eighth year. Mr. Mair had been a resident of British Columbia for twenty-three years. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

AMONG LAST WITH ROGERS

Alan Sullivan, Author, Back From Trip to North, Lived With Comedian

Alan Sullivan, author and newspaperman who was one of the last men to talk to Will Rogers and Wiley Post before their death in Alaska, reached Victoria this morning by plane from Vancouver and will remain here until Thursday.

"He was just the same off the screen as on," was Mr. Sullivan's description of Will Rogers, with whom he struck up a strong personal friendship during two days they were together at the Hudson's Bay house in Aklavik.

"He was a great storyteller," he added.

Mr. Sullivan left Aklavik three days before the tragedy, of which he learned at Lake Athabaska.

"I was with Con Farrell. It made us physically sick when we got the flash," he said. Farrell was Mr. Sullivan's pilot.

They had started south from Aklavik with a northwest gale under the tail of their machine, and landed at Athabaska to visit the copper mines. The weather during the whole period which he spent in Alaska was consistently bad, said Mr. Sullivan.

Mr. Sullivan has been making an extended visit to Canada's north during the last few months, traveling in all more than 4,000 miles by air, land and water. He has been collecting material for a new book, to be built around the early days of the Hudson's Bay Company.

After visiting the Hudson's Bay Company offices in Toronto, Mr. Sullivan went to Edmonton and flew thence to the copper mines in the Great Bear Lake district.

He followed the Mackenzie River by boat and returned into the interior again by plane, reaching Edmonton a few days ago and then coming out to the coast.

Mr. Sullivan has plans for a triology dealing with three separate periods of early Canadian life.

The writing of this type of book he compared to the weaving of a carpet. "There is the warp of substance, historically correct—then you weave in the woof—of fiction—providing the color and the pattern."

The first book of the triology, dealing with the last of the three periods, will be off the presses within the next month. It will be the story which has been running in MacLean's Magazine as a serial under the title of "Track of Destiny," but considerably enlarged. It will carry what Mr. Sullivan describes as "a less melodramatic title," "Great Divide."

This book is concerned with the laying of the Canadian Pacific line across Canada.

The second book, for which Mr. Sullivan has been collecting material, will be ready in about a year's time. Based around the history of the early days of the Hudson's Bay Company, it will cover the period from 1780 to 1830.

The third book, still only vaguely planned, will probably concern the life of the Jesuits in the early days of Canada.

According to Mr. Sullivan, collecting material for these books is not his most difficult task. The real problem, he says, is the selection of the useful material out of the vast pile of information and color which he collects.

During his visit to the north Mr. Sullivan has been writing for London papers.

EASTERNER TO RESIDE HERE

Through the good efforts of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau another eastern Canadian has stated his intention of residing in Victoria. In writing to the bureau he says:

"I must thank you for the interest you have so kindly taken in sending me such valuable information, which has given me all I wish to know. The balance of information will be my coming to Victoria, which I expect to do so within the next six months and at that time I shall wander around for a few months in order to find just the right spot to lay down my chattels, and I am quite sure that this course is one you would recommend.

"I shall not fail to call upon you when I arrive in Victoria, knowing that your valuable knowledge of what I want will be at my service."

Forty-four-pound Salmon Is Hooked

Just to see if there were any more fish in the Strait of Juan de Fuca last evening, Edward Cave, 1827 Hollywood Crescent, tossed his line overboard when off Trial Island. He had just got nicely adjusted in the seat of his boat when he got a strike.

For one hour Mr. Cave played about with his fish, and when he got home he found it weighed forty-four ponds, which is just about the biggest that has been taken off Trial Island this season. Mr. Cave, who works in the provincial department of public works, used a Chinook spoon to make his capture.

SCHOOL MEETING BILLED FRIDAY

The Victoria School Board will meet on Friday evening to pass accounts for the month and consider the assignment of teachers to the different schools for the fall term, which will open next Tuesday.

Each year certain changes are made in the personnel of staffs, teachers being switched to various institutions where the authorities believe their work will be of the most value.

What changes will be made this year are not expected to be revealed until the meeting is held. It is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock.

Decline Action On Pipe Tenders

The city water board yesterday declined to take action on tenders submitted by various firms for pipe needed for work on the Cold Harbor Road project when the figures submitted in the bids exceeded the expected cost for the material.

To allow all members of the City Council to consider the matter again, the water board decided to refer the tenders to the council for its approval or disapproval.

A DEAD-HEAD IS MINUS OF AMBItion, other than that of the beast of the field, namely, eat, drink, sleep and satisfy the lusts of the flesh. Look about you—time is fleeting and you are but a sojourner here. Why not live on that high plain of usefulness intended for man? Remember, you must give the mind as well as the stomach food, and it's not how much you put into either that counts, but the quality. Victoria High School Registrations

From Wednesday, August 21, until Friday, August 30, the principal of Victoria High School will be in his office from 10 a.m. until 12 noon in order to meet parents and prospective pupils. The high school office will also be open on Wednesday afternoons from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. It is not necessary to register pupils who have been promoted by recommendation or who have passed the entrance examination from a Victoria public school. Such students are already included in the high school lists. It is most important, however, that all other students entering any grade at the Victoria High School for the first time should register as soon as possible. It is necessary, also, that students in attendance at the Victoria High School last year, who are repeating a grade, should communicate with the principal at the earliest opportunity.

Victoria, B.C., August 19, 1935.

FINANCIER OF MEXICO PASSES

Jose Yves Limantour, Former Minister of Finance, Dies in Paris

Associated Press

Paris, Aug. 27.—Jose Yves Limantour, eighty-one, Mexican financier, died yesterday at his home. He was one of the last links to the long dictatorial regime of Porfirio Diaz in Mexico.

A delicate youth, whose early work frequently was interrupted by illness, he lived to dominate his country's finances for eighteen years, to fight any movement which he thought would give United States interests special advantages in Mexico, and to last through a quarter of a century of exile in France.

Limantour, although born in Mexico on December 26, 1854, was by blood a Frenchman.

"CURLY TOP" HELD OVER

Shirley Temple Picture to Play Two Extra Days at Capitol Theatre

For Film's dimunitive singing and dancing star, Shirley Temple, proved so popular in her latest starring vehicle at the Capitol Theatre this week that the management of the theatre announced to-day the picture will continue to-day and be held over for Wednesday and Thursday.

John Boles and Rochelle Hudson play the supporting roles is this tuneful romantic comedy of lovers brought together by the lovable and bright little "Curly Top."

The charming Shirley Temple delights the audience in her picture by singing "Animal Crackers in My Soup" and "Curly Top" and with some clever dainty dancing.

Popular Stars At Dominion

Fred MacMurray and Madge Evans Have Leading Roles in Dramatic New Picture

The newest, and probably the best of the stirring action films based on the exploits of the United States Government law enforcement division, Paramount's "Men Without Names," is now at the Dominion Theatre. Handsome, dashing Fred MacMurray, starred in "The Gilded Lily," and lovely Madge Evans head the cast.

Rip-roaring action is blended with a touching romantic story in this picture, which shows how the Department of Justice and its heroic agents are stemming the crime wave in the United States.

The action of "Men Without Names" jumps off from a daring mail-truck robbery, committed by a gang of ruthless desperadoes who flee to the west.

When money taken in the robbery shows up in a small Kansas town, MacMurray is sent to the area from Washington. Masquerading as a buisness man, he proceeds to unearth his criminals.

He is hindered in his work, however, by the town's leading newspaper woman. And, when he finds himself falling in love with her, he is unable to reveal his true identity.

As the trail grows hot, Lynne Overman joins MacMurray. Overman is shot down in cold blood by the gang when he breaks in on them, and MacMurray swears to get vengeance.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

Ruby Keeler, who co-stars with her husband, Al Jolson, in the First National musical spectacle, "Go Into Your Dance," now showing at the Columbia Theatre, has come out with a few beauty hints for girls of her own type.

Miss Keeler, who is youthful, demure, a brunette with dark brown eyes and hair and heavy eyebrows, and is slight of stature—says:

"If your eyebrows are heavy, like mine, do not pluck, but merely groom them. If they are not heavy, a slight line drawn either at the upper part of the eyebrow or the lower, will give them a similar contour."

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE

Theatregoers who enjoy a departure from the usual cinema programme were delighted with the light and breezy novelty of Elmer Cleve and company when they opened their three-day engagement on the stage of the Playhouse Theatre yesterday afternoon.

The act provided plenty of scintillating humor, a few exotic dances by Marilyn Keller and smart xylophone numbers by Elmer Cleve. Professor Cheer with his eccentric clowning, musical saw and comic accordion numbers delighted the audience. Among the old popular favorites introduced on the programme were "The Glow Worm," "Here Comes the Showboat," "On the Trail," "Sleep" and "Object of My Affection."

"Cardinal Richelieu," George Arliss's latest starring vericle for Darryl Zanuck's Twentieth Century Pictudes, now showing at the Playhouse Theatre, marks the distinguished star's sixth great historical screen characterization. With this portrayal the red-robed prelate who stood behind the throne of Louis III of France takes his place beside Disraeli, Alexander Hamilton, Voltaire, Nathan Rothschild and the Duke of Wellington.

In this most recent and most pretentious effort, Arliss has the support of Maureen O'Sullivan, Edward Arnold, Francis Lister, Douglas Dumbrille, Cesar Romero, Violet Cooper, Kathryn Alexander, Lumsden Hare and Halliwell Hobbes.

Heavy Selling Dips Prices Sharply On Wall Street List

Associated Press

New York, Aug. 27.—Prices of leading stocks toppled to-day under a deluge of selling orders that put the ticker tape several minutes behind

Losses ranged fr a fractions to around 3 points. The dowturn was attributed largely to profit taking inruced by technical factors. The close was weak. Transfers approximated 2,300,000 shares.

Brokers claimed to be little surprised at the reversal in view of the fact the list had been advancing for a relatively long time with only minor corrections. A steady to firm undertone was present in the early proceedings, but sagging utilities soon brought unsettlement. A number of issues received support in the last half hour and shared their declines.

Foreign exchanges were calm.

Among the more active share losers were American Can, American Telephone, U.S. Steel, Allied Chemical, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Auburn, Kennecott, Anaconda, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Case Johns-Manville, Consolidated Gas North American, Western Union, Westinghouse, American Water Works, Columbia Gas, Santa Fe, N.Y. Central, Delaware & Hudson and Great Northern. Resistance was shown by Du Pont and a few others.

Dow Jones averages closed to-day as follows:

Thirty industrials—126.81 off 2.18.

Twenty rails—34.72 off 0.99.

Twenty utilities—24.18 off 1.28.

METALS WEAK AT TORONTO

Canadian Press

Toronto, Aug. 27.—The Toronto mining market was rocked to-day by waves of selling on the New York board. Gold stocks held up fairly well, but senior base metals reflected outside weakness. Noranda dropped a point to 38 and partly recovered while Hudson Bay lost a half point.

Falconbridge advanced early to 4.50 and was able to hold most of the gain. Base Metals Corporation, Sherritt-Gordon and Pend Oreille also held part of their morning gains.

In the silvers prices were heavy although the metal market was unchanged. Eldorado weakened to 137, a new low for the movement and closed around 139, off 6. Castle lost a couple of cents and Bear was firm. Premier was around 1.47, up about 4 cents.

Senior gold issues were steady, aside from small recessions in Bralorne, Dome and Pioneer.

Wheat Steady With Fractional Gains At Winnipeg Close

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Aug. 27.—News to give futures a definite price trend was at a premium on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day.

After a session of mild irregularity, wheat prices closed ⅜ to ⅝ cent higher, August at 85⅛, October 84⅛ and December 83¾ cents.

Operations were quiet throughout, with both buying and selling at a minimum. Small export sales of Canadian wheat, upon which no figure was placed, gave values some support, but otherwise the session was featureless.

Liverpool closed ⅜d higher to ⅛d lower. A scarcity of Argentine and Australian offers on wheat there was reported. Chicago recovered from early-session declines, holding fractionally higher most of the day. Minneapolis gained about 1½ cents, while Buenos Aires at noon was ¾ cent advanced.

Cash grains trading was lifeless while coarse grains futures moved higher in a featureless market.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Wheat prices fluctuated nervously, dipping lower at the close to-day as traders in an unsettled market shifted attention from congressional developments to uncertainties associated with the Canadian wheat marketing policy.

Trading was dull and featureless. Adjournment of Congress without passage of the Commodity Exchange Regulation Bill had little or no effect.

Wheat closed ⅜ to ¾ cent below the previous finish, December 89⅞ to 90, and corn was unchanged to 1¼ off, December 56⅝ to 56½, with September liquidation leading the downturn. Oats were unchanged to ¼ off, rye ¼ to ⅝ down and barley unchanged to ½ up. Lard held steady to 25 points lower.

INDUSTRIALS CLOSE EASIER

Canadian Press

Toronto, Aug. 26.—Active industrial shares sold off quite sharply in the late trading to-day on the Toronto Exchange. Distillers-Seagrams slipped back to 23½ to lose more than a point, and Walker's common at 26 dropped ½. Weakness on the New York board was the main factor in depressing Toronto prices.

The selling did not reach heavy proportions and there appeared to be a slightly firmer condition ruling in the last few minutes. Distillers-Seagrams recovered a little of its loss and in the oils, International Petroleum closed slightly above the 35 mark after touching 35. British American Oil and Imperial dropped ⅛ to ¼ each.

Brazilian Traction touched a new low for the year at 7⅝, while Ford A at 25 was down more than a point in active turnover. C.P.R. was slightly soft and Consolidated Smelters sagged about three points to 167.

Losses were general in the food group. Implement stocks moved in sympathy.

Now the huge bull ape that had replied to the distant call leaped from the inner circle to dance alone. Growling and barkin he crouched and leaped again and again. Then he barking, he crouched and leaped again and again. Then he Beating his shaggy breast, he uttered a piercing scream. It was the challenge of the bull-ape—had the girl but known it! Standing in the full glare of the moon, he was a picture of primitive power and savagery.

A moment he remained motionless. Suddenly, from close behind her, the girl heard an answering scream. An instant later she saw an almost naked white man drop from a nearby tree into the clearing. At once the apes became a roaring, snarling pack.

What madman was this who dared approach the frightful and now obviously angry creatures in their own haunts, alone against fifty? She saw the brown-skinned figure, bathed in moonlight, walk straight toward the snarling pack!

The Gumps

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR MISS DIX—I am secretly married to a man I am very much in love with but who doesn't love me. He just drifted into marriage because he didn't care what happened.

He was out of work, discouraged, and I was there with open arms. I thought I could tie him to me by making marriage a desirable state, coming home to a loving, understanding wife; to a warm, comfortable home; to a companionship; to all the things he hadn't had for a long time. But I haven't had a chance to try that out because we haven't been able to establish a home. Now he seems to regret the marriage. Says that we made a mistake in marrying, that marriage should be based on more than liking, and that it is a good thing we have kept it a secret. He expects to go out of town for a few months seeking employment and says he may not come back.

What shall I do? Try to make him jealous or make him feel that no matter what happens, I will always be there waiting and loving him? I though if I married him I would be the happiest girl in the world. Instead I am the most miserable. My pep, the very desire to live is gone.

J. R.

Answer: It seems to me that the time has come when you must have a showdown with your husband and find out just where you stand. The uncertainty in which you live at present is harder on your nerves than any fate could be, for to alternate between hope and despair is like having your heart torn to pieces by wild beasts. There is comfort in even knowing the worst, and peace comes with accepting the inevitable.

So force your husband to a decision. Tell him that you will have no more of this secret-wife business. That will save your face and do much to clarify the situation. Also it will leave you free to get a divorce in case he is really tired of the marriage and wants to call it off. That seems to be the case with him, and when a man wants to go, all that a wife can do is to let him go, especially when she has as slim a claim upon him as a secret marriage gives her.

Perhaps when your husband realizes that you will no longer put up with his shilly-shallying and that you are about to turn him adrift, he will be panic-stricken at the thought of having his last anchor cut, the last bond of human love and sympathy severed, and he will flee to you for comfort and sustaining. Maybe it will make him realize that he does love you better than he thinks he does. Sometimes it takes a shock to wake a man up to a knowledge of his own feelings.

At any rate, whether this plan works or not, it is your only chance. For you can neither bring him back by trying to make him jealous, nor can you inspire an ardent passion in his breast by patient waiting. No man values the things that he can have easily. It is too cheap.

I think that no women are more to be pitied—or blamed—than those who are so much in love with a man that they practically shanghai him into marriage. Such a woman knows that a man does not love her, that he would not voluntarily marry her, yet she uses all her arts and wiles to entrap him. If he is sick, she nurses him. If he is lonely and forlorn and discouraged, she gives him companionship and lets him talk endlessly to her about his misfortunes. If he is out of money, she is the person he can always borrow from. And finally in some moment when he is particularly down on his luck she drags him to the altar.

The woman justifies herself by thinking that she will make the man love her by being good to him, by surrounding him with all the comforts of home, by making life pleasanter for him. She thinks he can't help but come to love her because she loves him so much.

But her optimism is seldom, if ever, justified. Love is neither sold nor bought. It is not the child of gratitude. A man loves his wife because he does and not because he should. The husband who has been inveigled into marriage always feels like a wild animal in a trap.

So my advice, J. R., is to open your trap and let your rabbit go. Perhaps he will come back and eat out of your hand. Perhaps he will never return. But as he is he isn't much of a pet, anyway.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—What can you do with a mother who seems to think that all your dates are hers, and who spends the evenings when boys come to call sitting in the parlor and helping to entertain them? It isn't that my mother has any idea of watching us and chaperoning us. It is just that she loves company and wants to be amused. I love my mother and wouldn't say anything to hurt her feelings, but she is killing my popularity, for after an evening in the bosom of the family, as it were, a good prospect seldom returns. Isn't there some way that mothers can be put wise to the fact that when daughter has a beau she should scram after greeting the young man?

SALLY.

Answer: If Mother loves the sound of her own voice, nothing short of gagging her, which is an undutiful thing and one that no daughter likes to do, will keep her from plopping herself down in the most comfortable chair in the parlor and regaling the boy friend with a two-hour monologue about the cute child Mary was when she was a baby, and how sick Johnny was when he had the measles, and how different things are in these days from the way they were when she was a girl.

And Mother doesn't mean a thing by it. She loves young company and she loves to talk, and she hasn't the slightest idea in the world that she is driving away that nice Mr. Smith, whom she would be so glad to see Mary marry and probably dooming Mary to spinsterhood.

For boys will not come to a house in which the parents are too much in evidence. It quarantines a girl against masculine society to have a papa who always reads the paper in earshot just as much as it would to have a smallpox sign nailed on the door. Young men pass by on the other side of the street and rush some girl whose mother and father and aunts and uncles and little brothers and sisters stay in their proper place, which is not the parlor when the girls have company.

And this isn't because Mary and her pals are going to do anything or say anything that is wrong or that the whole wide world might not hear. It is just because the presence of their elders cramps their style and makes them feel young and awkward and self-conscious. They can't giggle over nothing and talk foolishness and be silly knowing that a critical eye is upon them and a caustic voice will make scathing remarks on them when they are gone.

A wise mother writes welcome on the doormat and gives the boy friend a glad hand, then she leaves the field open to daughter.

Uncle Wiggily's Secret

By HOWARD R. GARIS

All through the cottage at Green Lake, where Uncle Wiggily was spending the summer, there was buzzing talk, laughing whispers and much shushing and hushing among the rabbit boys and girls.

"He's going to tell us to-day," said Baby Bunty to Jingle.

"Yes," answered Jingle, "then the mystery will be over."

"I'm so anxious to see the mystery," said Jangle. "Do you think it will have legs, Baby Bunty?"

"Silly! Certainly not!" laughed the orphan rabbit. "I told you a mystery is the same as a secret and Unkie Wig promised to tell us his secret yesterday."

"I thought he was going to tell us to-day," said Buster.

"He is," said Bunty. "You see yesterday has turned into to-day."

"And that's sort of mysterious, too," laughed Custer. "How does one day turn into another so nobody can see it?"

"Oh, don't make up any more mysteries," said Bunty. "One is enough. But I know where Daddy keeps his secret."

NO PEEKING

"Where?" asked the girl rabbits as the boy rabbits listened.

"In the hall closet," answered the orphan bunny. "I saw him put the mystery box there when he came home with it yesterday and nobody was in the cottage. I saw him because I was hiding in the clover."

"Well, if he has something hidden in the hall closet," said Buster, "maybe we could see it if we peeked through the keyhole."

"Oh, no, that wouldn't be fair!" objected Bunty. "When there's a hidden secret mystery it is best to wait until the time for it to come out."

"Well, I wish it would hurry and come out," said Jingle. "I wonder what it is?"

So did all the other bunnies and there was so much whispering talk in the cottage that Nurse Jane said to Mrs. Longears:

"The children must be up to some trick."

"I think so myself," agreed Mrs. Longears. "And Wiggy, too, is acting in a queer, mysterious way."

"He wouldn't let me open the door of the hall closet," said the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"Wouldn't he?" asked the lady rabbit in surprise. "That's funny. If this was Christmas I'd say he had a present locked up there. But this isn't Christmas."

SECRET IS OUT

"No, but it's almost as good!" all of a sudden exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. Into the kitchen he hopped while his wife and Nurse Jane were wondering about the secret mystery. As soon as the rabbit children heard his voice they, also, came hopping into the kitchen.

"What do you mean, Wiggy, that to-day is almost as good as Christmas?" asked Mrs. Longears.

"Because it's YOUR BIRTHDAY!" laughed the rabbit gentleman. "And I've bought you a present. This is the secret! This is the mystery!" he went on as he opened the door of the hall closet. And there, inside, was a fine new radio, all bright and shining. This was what Uncle Wiggily had brought home in the box that he had hidden away.

"Oh, how lovely!" exclaimed the lady rabbit. "Just what I wanted! It's sweet of you, Wiggy!" And she kissed her husband on his pink, twinkling nose. Then he turned on the radio and when it played music all the bunny children danced and everybody was happy.

So if the pussy cat will stop drinking all the water out of the bird bath, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the kind robin.

NEW SCHEDULE IS ARRANGED

Passengers From Victoria Will Be Able to Leave Vancouver For East Same Day

Victorians who formerly, when going east, had to spend several hours waiting for their trains in Vancouver, will be able to make direct connections from the afternoon boat from Victoria, on and after September 1, according to a new schedule issued by the Canadian Pacific Railway this morning.

Because the train left for the east at 2.45 o'clock in the afternoon, Victorians had to go to Vancouver the day before and spend the night there or take the night steamer and wait from early morning to mid-afternoon. Because of the convenience of the new schedule people from Victoria will now be able to step off the steamer and go directly to the train.

The new train schedule will bring Chicago four and a half hours closer to Vancouver, cut two and a half hours off the time between Vancouver and Winnipeg, three hours and twenty minutes between Vancouver and Toronto, and two hours and forty minutes between Vancouver and Montreal.

The new "Dominion" and "Soo-Dominion" will leave Vancouver daily at 7.15 p.m. instead of 2.45 p.m. as at present; will reach Winnipeg at 7.15 p.m. instead of 5.15 p.m.; Toronto at 7.30 a.m. instead of 6.20 a.m., and Montreal at 10.30 a.m. instead of 8.40 a.m.

Out of Vancouver the train will carry through St. Paul and Chicago sleep cars for transfer at Moose Jaw to Chicago and the Twin Cities by way of Portal.

All important train and boat connections throughout the Canadian Pacific system have been protected and several changes have been made to conform with the new running time.

Canadian Pacific steamships, effective September 1, will alter their transatlantic sailings from Montreal from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. and will put back their Quebec sailings of the Empress liners from 1.30 p.m. to 3 p.m. The boat train special will leave Montreal at 10.05 a.m., picking up passengers from western Canada from the "Dominion" at Montreal west at 10.17 a.m., delivering them to the ship's side at Quebec at 2.25 p.m.

As it now stands the triangle service of the B.C. Coast steamships makes a convenient connection with the new 7.15 p.m. departure of the "Dominion" from Vancouver. The boat reaches Vancouver now at 5.55 p.m. and will continue on this schedule until September 8. On and after September 9, the arrival will be at 6.45 p.m. but this will leave half an hour for the connection.

TO LOOK FOR SUNKEN SHIP

C. Courtney, Famous Safe-opener, to Search For Treasure Near Honolulu

Los Angeles, Aug. 27. — Charles Courtney, who says he has opened up hitherto unopenable safes in all parts of the world, yesterday announced he was Honolulu-bound to determine if it would be worth while trying his technique on a sunken boat that may contain treasure.

The boat in question, said Courtney, is 350 miles outside of Honolulu, and it is supposed to contain "lotea dough." Its name and location is Courtney's secret.

A "syndicate" is back of Courtney, he said, and he is just the scout. Like the treasure boat, the identity of the syndicate is also a secret.

Courtney did reveal, however, that his home is in New York City, and that he recently did a particularly tough safe-opening job for the "Bolshevik Government" in Russia.

"I'm going to try to locate the ship," said Courtney. "I'm going to see what the depth is and what the ocean currents are like and then we'll decide if it is worth the trouble. It may be just a false alarm."

Courtney said he was in Los Angeles to present a pair of silver handcuffs to Mrs. Harry Houdini, widow of the great magician.

The handcuffs, he asserted, were taken from Houdini's private safe in New York City, which, Courtney said, with unconcealed pride, he opened for the first time since the death of the magician. The handcuffs, he explained, were given to Houdini by the City of London.

Just how and when Courtney will sail for Hawaii is another of his secrets.

Peace In Sight For Waterfronts

Longshoremen's Association Votes Overwhelmingly For Renewal of Agreement With Employers

Associated Press

San Francisco, Aug. 27.—Peace for another year on Pacific Coast waterfronts was believed assured to-day after the International Longshoremen's Association, key union in the long and bitter maritime strike of 1934, voted overwhelmingly for renewal of an agreement with employers.

The nearly complete official vote in favor of continuation of the agreement, which the employers had previously announced they were willing to renew, was anounced as 8,468 to 1,329 by Paddy Norris, district I.L.A. secretary, in Seattle yesterday evening.

One issue remained unsettled, however, when the longshoremen simultaneously voted 5,234 to 4,784 for continuation of an embargo against cargo loaded at British Columbia ports under strike conditions.

The San Francisco Waterfront Employers' Association had charged the embargo was a violation of the work agreement entered into on the basis of a federal mediation board's findings after the 1934 strike. Roger D. Lapham, representing the waterfront employers and ship owners, declined to comment on the matter, however.

Hopes that a solution would be reached were expressed by William J. Lewis, district president of the I.L.A.

Under the terms of the agreement, it would expire September 30 upon thirty days' notice from either employers or the union that its renewal was not desired.

SOLD PLANES IN EUROPE

Anthony Fokker Returns to New York By Ss. Normandie After Business Trip

New York, Aug. 27.—Anthony Fokker, airplane designer of Alpine, N.J., who has been touring Europe for the last two months to introduce the Douglass airplane, returned last week on the French liner Normandie. He said that the Dutch Air Line from Amsterdam to Batavia had tested his airplane and that he had closed an agreement with the Holland Aircraft Company for the manufacture and distribution of Douglass planes in Europe.

Planes had been purchased by Italy, Holland, Switzerland and Czeshoslovakia, Mr. Fokker said. France, England and Germany were not in the market, except for individual purchases, he added.

When asked if the increase in airplane equipment in the chief European countries did not signify a preparation for war, Mr. Fokker said: "I should say that it is more the realization that their airplane services are old fashioned and inadequate. All the nations seem to realize that the air units of defense are enormously important."

Mr. Fokker said that news of the deaths of Will Rogers and Wiley Post had saddened him. "Both men were brilliant and did a great deal for commercial flying," he declared. "Rogers as a pioneer passenger and Post as a great pioneer aviator. In their deaths aviation loses two of its best American friends."

Commander Brodeur Going to England

Of interest to his many friends in Victoria is the announcement that Commander Victor G. Brodeur, R.C.N., former commander-in-charge of the Royal Canadian Naval Barracks at Esquimalt, has been sent to England for course study on H.M.S. Victory. He will sail from Canada in time to take up his duties by September 23.

Commander Brodeur first came to Esquimalt some years ago as captain of H.M.C.S. Skeena. He brought her out from England on her maiden voyage, and remained her commander until appointed to the senior naval officer's position on shore. He remained at Naden House for a few years, and was then transferred to naval headquarters at Ottawa, his place here being taken by Commander G. C. Jones, R.C.N.
